

My sad story

Posted by Chassidishe buchur - 03 Jul 2018 05:29

Struggling for over 10 yrs. Help!!

=====

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Chassidishe buchur - 07 Mar 2019 06:43

likavod rosh chodesh adar bais drive.google.com/file/d/1wLgSoJemzy0AdlsxkFa3zuoU1UpL4_FI/view

=====

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by chabadchassid5779 - 14 Apr 2019 04:23

C. Your story is a little bit too detailed. It gives away who you are. Good luck on your journey.

=====

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Chassidishe buchur - 01 May 2019 01:01

TThanks ill take out some.

=====

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Chassidishe buchur - 03 May 2019 21:12

I fell today.

=====

=====

Re: My sad story
Posted by Markz - 03 May 2019 21:15

Chassidishe buchor wrote on 03 May 2019 21:12:

I fell today.

Sorry to hear.

Are there other things at play here...

Have you got any team support in place of lack of family support?

=====

=====

Re: My sad story
Posted by ColinColin - 04 May 2019 22:36

Why did you fall?

Lust?

Depression?

Loneliness?

Once you know why, you can work on having a plan to be more positive.

=====

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by OTR - 20 May 2019 18:01

My daughter fell the other day. She cried for a minute kevetched and got back up and continued playing what she was doing before. Today I couldn't tell she fell a day earlier.. plays right along with everyone else.

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Markz - 20 May 2019 19:05

OTR wrote on 20 May 2019 18:01:

My daughter fell the other day. She cried for a minute kevetched and got back up and continued playing what she was doing before. Today I couldn't tell she fell a day earlier.. plays right along with everyone else.

As a good Daddy I assume you told her she should count 90 days and then you'll give her a slurpee!

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Chassidishe buchor - 29 Mar 2020 04:34

I got married recently and thought i wouldn't need to come back to this website. But i guess i do.

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by sleepy - 29 Mar 2020 07:12

Mazal tov!May you build a bayis ne'eman biyisroel!

i just got through reading your thread, and i really feel bad for all your falls. i wish i had what to tell you to help you stay clean,but i dont know what to say except," please dont give up!"YOU CAN DO IT,and YOU WILL DO IT! by "can do it " and "will do it" i mean change ,you CAN change! take it at your pace , one day at a time,and TODAY is a great day to start! can you just stay clean today?try it , you cant lose.by me, the hardest time is the first day after a fall , but after that ,when i feel clean ,i try to throw myself into distracting things(Tehilim, Learning Davening,listening to a good shiur ,nowadays preparing for pesach and the seder night) with a cheerful heart ,after all , Hashem STILL wants my Davening ,Learning, and other parts of Avodas Hashem,and it does help,BH.

wishing you hatzlacha and strength of heart to build your house with simcha!

=====
=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by sleepy - 29 Mar 2020 13:21

Changing wrote on 04 Jul 2018 04:37:

Chassidishe buchor wrote on 03 Jul 2018 05:29:

It started when I was in eighth grade, I was in the smart class of our grade, originally I wasn't put in the smart class but I really wanted to be in it so my father convinced the school to put me in. I regret till today being in that class for the following reason. One day one of my friends was learning Chumash about ????? ?? ????? and he didn't understand the whole idea, about the egyptian coming into the house etc. so another one of my friends explained to him that for a child to be born the parents need to have s.. and explained what it is and told him he can see videos of it on the internet just go to s...com. after hearing this I got very curious to check it out but I didn't have access to a computer with internet in my house. But the next time I went to my father's house (my parents are devorced and I live with my mother) I had access to a computer with internet and I checked it out.

and after that you understood the Pasuk well? what a great learning tool! Is Torah Umesorah aware of this website?

=====
=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by eyes - 30 Mar 2020 00:58

Hi Chassidishe bochur,

I really feel for you as I have a hard story as well.

PLease PM me

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by Michael94 - 30 Mar 2020 09:54

Hello, I really feel sorry for you, wake up and do something about your issue, you're not draiying in 770 like one of the boys anymore (well now with covid19 I don't think it's possible), you're married, you have a wife, iyh you're gonna have kids....

do what the experienced people here have said, reach out to LIVE PEOPLE in email phone and eventually In PERSON.

wishing you Hatzlocho in all!

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by YeshivaGuy - 29 Nov 2020 07:22

Hows it goin?

=====

Re: My sad story

Posted by YeshivaGuy - 25 Jan 2021 04:14

Chassidishe buchur wrote on 29 Mar 2020 04:34:

I got married recently and thought i wouldn't need to come back to this website. But i guess i do.

Sorry to hear.

So why not come back and start using it?

=====

=====