

My story.

Posted by Moshekapoya26 - 25 Feb 2019 15:50

Hey,

I have been on here quite a few times .been mostly inactive. I have been struggling with porn and masturbation for around ten years .I am 27 years old. Been married for a few years have children BH. Have a lovely wife.

When there's anything stressful going on in my life p and m are my solution. More than porn it's chatting etc that I struggle with.

I wouldn't consider myself as attracted to males .But I tend to watch that type of material. I think it stems from how looking at straight porn was too "prust" in my eyes.

I've hit new lows but BH never met up in person or done anything like that. Found flaws in my filter and I let loose in every way I could. It's eating me up and want to free myself from this garbage .

Welcome Moshe, you should have much ????? here!

There are many great helpful tools here to help us along. Preferably speak to a professional (many can be found on this site) if you have any ??? you need more intense help. Better not to wait too long as these things tend to spiral downhill...

In regard to filter loopholes, I have found it easiest to fix them immediately after acting out, when I had a few minutes of "freedom". I'd end up hating myself later for doing it, but hey, too bad on me!

@Moshe

Establish a planned and positive response to stress.

Walking

Praying

Reading

Studying

Talking to friends

Visiting family etc.

Welcome. It should be with hatzlocha. Staying connected with the chevra here helps a lot. Cash in on the chizuk/advice that's available.

One response to something you wrote. Maybe its time to learn kosher and healthy stress relief as alternatives to pornography and masturbation. I found exercise to be a great replacement. Chatting may be a desperate desire for companionship (which will not be fulfilled by phone relationships). Maybe its time to spend some more healthy time with your wife sharing your day etc, as well as catching up with some real friends.
