thanks for the Cizekl will start as I remember it was about at age 10 my parent takes me as a tutor should help with learning in CIDER.I don't remember which time it was but I remember him putting his feet there then putting his hand like a mistake, I grow as a frum boy knowing we were not allowed to put the hand there, so I get so confused and didn't know what to think, but the funny part I like when he was doing it so I try to copy him to continue...

Welcome! There are many great people here and you are not alone. There are also many on this site who were stuck for years, and sometimes decades, and have succeeded in breaking free and rewiring their thinking and actions. Abuse can be a major factor in sexual problems and addictions, and opening up about it can feel scary and painful. Do you have a therapist to work through this with? If not, please consider reaching out to Relief or Amudim. Both have great resources and can help find the right therapist for you while maintaining your privacy. Hatzlacha Rabbah!

Welcome! Wow, it takes a tremendous amount of courage to open up and tell your story - even though it is anonymous. Thanks for sharing! Hopefully you are on the right path to help and success here, we're here for you and hope you can continue the climb, perhaps a difficult climb, to success recovery, and overcoming all that shame. Many people here have dealt with abuse in different forms, and you should know you are not at all alone in this.

Sounds good.

Have you shared your story with a coach / therapist?

You see there's this famous guy Fishel Klein on R' Eli Stefanskys daf Shiur. Is that you?

I heard R' Eli has a line something to the effect of "It's not about the Daf, it's about the Yomi".

For the DafYomi project it's good.

For sobriety it's not.

Being in recovery is made up of 2 things. #1 Today - of course!

#2 working a program. What's a 'program'? It varies from person to person.

If you work a program 3 days a week and that gives you long term success, that's the way to go.

If you have no real plan but you keep logging into gye 7 days a week or log "I didn't fall today YAY", that can oftentimes give zero long term results...

Make sense?

Keep on Trucking!
