Hey!

Welcome back, its always good to have you around. Please stop by more often and share your thoughts with us.

I cant imagine how painful it is to struggle while feeling lonely and weak.

If you don't mind elaborating on those small connections you mentioned? Who are those people you are connecting with? and what's your purposes of you connecting with them?

My friend, I feel for you, your words do give me a sense of weak and loneliness but here at GYE we are all together at all times. Please stick around, share your day with us. Let us know how you feel. Someone will always be available to embrace you.

Looking forward to learning from you,

Sholom,

Thank you for your support I was so involved in my own misery that I did not notice in the slightest that you also have a very difficult struggle.

What do you mean with "connections" or is that one or another 11-step jargon which I am of yet not privy to?

Can you explain it a bit clearer?

A guten woch
