In my limited experience I have seen that people who keep up with friends that are in them in this struggle really helps them keep up the momentum. My friend, I'm sorry for the pain. It really hurts. Remember, you are human, and human beings are challenged. And we sometimes fall. That's ok, as long as we just GET UP AND KEEP TRUCKING!!! Stick around, my friend. Share. And Smile!

BH I've achieved a two-day clean streak, and it's a small victory compared to being clean for over 1200 days. I often wish our minds and subconscious were akin to computers, easily reprogrammable. Rabbi Avdiger Miller says that there's no true deletion from the subconscious; instead, we should focus on building positive layers on top of it, accumulating as much as we can.

I can very much relate to the way you're feeling. You CANNOT let yourself get pulled down by this setback. The real ????? ???? for you just began. As we say ???? ??? ????????, it means after the ???, to not allow ourselves to fall for the trap of the YH.

Today marks 31 days clean still have a long way to go to get back to 1300 days where I'm coming from important lesson I learned you can NEVER let your guard down and you ALWAYS have to avoid triggers

As a Jew it's also important to know that it is not all or nothing we have an opportunity for greatness each and every day.

I started reading the book almost every day the battle of the generation and it really helps to put things in perspective and to slowly re-wire the brain

Wishing ALL of you a warm and lovely Shabbos

Thank you, Hashem, for granting me the strength to reach 90 days. Although it pains me greatly to have stumbled after 500 clean days, it was a vital lesson learned: as long as you breathe, you must NEVER let your guard down and always avoid all triggers.

I am grateful to enter this holiday of holiness with 90 clean days behind me, even though it could have been 600 days.

Thank you so much to all my GYE brothers for your support, both publicly and privately. I LOVE YOU ALL.

"As long as you breathe, you must NEVER let your guard down and always avoid all triggers."

FACTS.

Terrific perspective-keep up the amazing work!!!

Wow, just wow! With immense gratitude to Hashem, I want to express how thankful I am as I approach a year since last year's difficult fall. Baruch Hashem, I was able to stay clean this year. THANK YOU, HASHEM!

It's all about being brutally honest with yourself—identifying your triggers before they escalate into desire and avoiding them at all cost.

Thank you GYE for your amazing support

You are not getting back to 1300 days, rather you are moving further forward with these 1300 days already in your pocket.
