

seeing some bright light!

Posted by altehmirrerr - 27 Dec 2024 05:54

Hello chevrah! ah freilechin wonderful chanukah to all of us fighters!

I just docked in san francisco, it was a long rocky trip from shanghai, hope to find some steady grounding over here!

Bikitzur i am an old timer/new timer, decided to come back and say hello!!

My journey (which is far from over l'choirah) is unique (like everyones!), and if i find it beneficial i will be posting more!

sorry but i need some sleep it's been quite a journey!! hatzlocha to all!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! looking forward to connecting and being honest and open with you all!!

Hi chevra, i called a chatline today....., it's really really not ok, there's no way to get rid of the accessibility! it's so frustrating...., i know i should be reaching out to a friend before and i hope to do that in the future, but still it would be really beneficial if it weren't so readily available, like with porn and other stuff i would have to think long before i do it... but the chatline is right there...., if anyone has any eitzos to help get rid of my accessibility please please please... i would consider changing phone service to one where i can block it all if there is a such a option, please let me know, thank you!

Here's the update, i tried calling them to block my number, they wouldn't do it for me...., plus there are to many services...., but what i did do is set my phone to a option that i can only make outgoing calls to my contacts, and someone else has the code (@minhamayim your the best best best!!!, I am so honored to call you my friend) to be able to switch that, i hope this works out well!! it feels good to do this, it is inconvenient not to be able to make random calls, but it's a } (p.s. i think with smart phones there are more options to be able to block these numbers, at least according to chatgpt).

Hatzlocha raba to us all!! price well worth it, {i have a house phone if you know what that is

Hello chevra! hope were all doing great!, I have some somber news to share with my fellow gye friends, i was nebach diagnosed, now before i even continue please take a minute to be mispallel for altehmirrerr ben his mother, thank you so much as the tefilos of my fellow gyers are vey powerful!

The good news is that all the doctors agree that the situation is hopeful, but they say that alot of the recovery really depends on me the patient, so i'm hoping to do my part.

Now for some details the name of this sickness is YENEM MACHLA (not to be confused with yeneh machla ch"v), it is a detrimental sickness which affects every second of the patients day, it robs him of any menucha, it is terrible, as it robs him from his very essence, here is a description of some of the symptoms,

1. living life to impress YENEM
2. always trying to copy YENEM
3. never thinking for oneself, only for YENEM

never truly being ok with myself, never believing in myself, thinking of myself as a worthless piece of garbage, the only value i had was what others would think of me, bec. i thought nothing of myself, so all my life i would do the motions of YENEM, as a kid... as a bochur... and as a yungerman... always comparing myself to YENEM, to the "in" guy, hoping (and sometimes succeeding) that those around me would think of me as YENEM, never really feeling connected to it, and never feeling real, but that was my only fuel that i knew of, after all what's my other option? to be garbage to me and to others? i may as well atleast fool others.....

Bh since i joined gye and since i am rediscovering life i am doing alot better, more comfortable and accepting of myself, and more of a govra, but am i healed yet? no!, i still have a hangover of YENEM MACHLA, i still find myself making choices based on me being YENEM, it's a horrible machla as it causes one not to reach their potential, and to be miserable people.

So please keep on davening for me ????? ??? ????? ??????,

With a heart full of thanx, the @alteh

Not to belittle your predicament, but welcome to the club! I think most of us suffer from this malady to a certain extent, in one form or another. ??? ????? ??? ?????.

I concur with amevakesh, your words filled me with ice cold dread until I read the end, you can't do that dude.

Unacceptable.

At this point, your grievous affliction gets ZERO SYMPATHY from me. Sorry. Maybe later, when I recover....

Maybe this should've been in The Grouchery.

Maybe not.

Who cares?

You're absolutely right! The content of your post certainly deserves a response. Although I came here to gripe about your choice of words, I have very little to offer in terms of your actual pain (as Moldy Voldy generally does not give a rats rear end about anybody/yenem) and so I must defer to others.

Sorry for only coming here to gripe, perhaps that was not very kind.

"I used to always worry about what people would think about me. But then my friend told me that the Oilam really only respects someone who mamash doesn't care about what people think about him, so I stopped caring, 'cause I know that the Oilam holds from me now, more than ever."

Are we chopped liver?

Do you not care what we think of you?

Even though you've shared your struggles?

We think your constantly someone to look up to, thoughtful and a true Ben torah. I dont say this

So even if you are nervous about what Yenem thinks, at least let that Yenem be us!
