

I'm trying, I really am

Hello everyone,

When everything comes apart, the ??? is always there to tempt. When the world crumbles, he is already ready to corrupt and entangle. This is the struggle that I have had (that I'm sure almost all of you have had) for decades. It always happens when I am at my lowest point. Whether it's my parents yelling at teenage me, my wife expressing her disapproval, or when I look at myself in the mirror and wonder at just how awful a person I truly am. He is there, and so are his little tools.

I have always struggled with this problem. Sometimes I even manage to succeed for awhile, only for one failure to drop me back to below square one. And like the subject states: I'm trying. I truly am. G-d please forgive me and grant me the strength I clearly do not have. I don't know if I have it in me.

Sincerely,

A broken person.

*sigh*

Update: I failed. Again. I need to restart, but I need to find a good therapist before I do. I can't do this alone. I tried, but I couldn't do it.

We may not all be therapists, but there are definitely those on here with vast experience who are happy to help you. Please reach out to them. I'm not a therapist OR vastly experienced but feel free to reach out anyways, always here for a brother in need.

im new here. i thought i was alone in this struggle so its really nice to be part of the family.

honestly im awed that as soon as u fall its about picking yourself back up and getting back into the fight. thats really cool

i never met with success until i reached out to muttel. he saved my life. legit.

also side note you guys all did much better on making a user name than i did lotta creativity:cool:
