Need Advice Posted by trying1989 - 19 Feb 2025 06:23

Hey guys!

I'm going on a long flight soon. I don't want to watch any movies or stuff, but even when my screen is off I always end up looking at the person next to me or across from me.

Does anyone have some good tips?

I saved a couple podcasts and I'm going to bring a Gemara and a book, but that's good for 4 hours max.

What am I going to do????

Thanks!

I saved a couple podcasts and I'm going to bring a Gemara and a 37 book, but that's good for 4 hours max.
What am I going to do????
Thanks!
Seriously, I always bring my computer for GYE (worth the money to buy internet access if necessary  Warning: Spoiler!
That should do the trick!
), and at least one book - more if necessary. As a BIG bookworm, having enough reading material helps.
Also very, very helpful to text a fellow GYE'er for accountability before and after. I still do that now and it's amazing how helpful it is!
Keep us posted!

Lol!!

I need some room for my clothes.

I can't imagine using GYE on the plane. Do you have a privacy screen or something??

thanks for all the love!!

My thought process for this is that whoever knows about GYE probably knows about this nisoyon or is dealing with it themselves. I use GYE on the subway all the time and even "risk" it when my roomates are around.

Warning: Spoiler!

Also I find it very liberating to have some noise canceling headphones with music or even just silence and just living for a little. Nowadays we are always distracted or trying to distract ourselves. This won't work for a long flight of course but part of it might be nice to just stare at the ceiling and think about life.

3rd party applications are capable of blocking a part of your screen. An easy option would be something like Notezilla or Stickypad where you can lock a note to stay on the forefront of the screen and position it over the GYE!
You can also put on a baseball cap. But we all know.

Hey everyone,

Wanted to let everyone know how it worked out!! We made it out without watching any movies and barely watching others screens. At the beginning of the trip no one near me was watching. Had to switch seats and my new seat had 2 front neighbors that were watching. I kept having to refocus on something else. I think the hardest part was my podcasts not being interesting enough and not being able to fall asleep! I was going crazy! I almost starting repeating steps 3-5

I was not able to connect to GYE or read the books I had planned for there were way to many Jews around!! Don't worry I love them! Just not when I'm trying to meditate and read how to break free from p and m... Played some games but even that is not fun up in the air, not sure why it changes!

A big thanks to HHM and Others who gave me great pointers. I had a plan, even if I didn't stick to the plan but at least I came in with one. I may have only accomplished 1/4 of what I planned to.

hanks for all the advice!!
n not going anywhere there's still the flight back!!! nd get kicked off the plane!!!

Thank you Hashem! The flight was amazing! My seat-mates slept almost the whole time and during the time one was watching I fell asleep!
At one point I noticed someone ahead of me watching a show I wanted to watch for a while and told myself that 'I don't watch' and not 'I can't'. I think that really helped.
Thank you for all your tefillos!!!
