

Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Shteeble - 01 Dec 2011 16:43

Please vote l'toeles harabbim.

Thank you.

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by last try(hope) - 07 Dec 2011 07:26

Reb Yid wrote on 04 Dec 2011 22:44:

I went to the settings in my hotmail account and set my country as Azerbaigan, or something like that. All of the advertisements and potentially triggering stuff seems to be specifically tailored to your location. Since there are no advertisers who care to reach 3rd world markets, your screen remains clean and free!! I'm assuming this would work with those other sites as well.

Try it!!

Hatzlocha,

Reb Yid

good idea

you could also change your settings that you are a 90 year old female the only ads you will get are about nursing homes. besides that gmail sends most stuff to spam mail so that is good

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by shemirateinayim - 07 Dec 2011 16:48

Gmail has a feature where a middleparty can act as an administrator for their clients. Example, E???? filtering gives their subscribers an email account, with minimal features. No BUZZ, almost no labs, etc etc etc. Mybe GYE itself could one day create such an account. Obviosly anyone would be free to open additional anonymous accounts, to fulfill their aveiros, but the email they MUST USE will at least be clean.

This probably costs money, but the possibility exists.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Yosef Hatzadik - 02 Jan 2012 08:39

I am now Azerbaijan's newest resident. ;D

Problem: The time zone is not the same as the little village in which I actually live, therefore the dates & times of my emails are :o

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Blind Beggar - 02 Jan 2012 10:23

last try\(hope\) wrote on 07 Dec 2011 07:26:

Reb Yid wrote on 04 Dec 2011 22:44:

I went to the settings in my hotmail account and set my country as Azerbaigan, or something like that. All of the advertisements and potentially triggering stuff seems to be specifically tailored to your location. Since there are no advertisers who care to reach 3rd world markets, your screen remains clean and free!! I'm assuming this would work with those other sites as well.

Try it!!

Hatzlocha,

Reb Yid

good idea

you could also change your settings that you are a 90 year old female the only ads you will get are about nursing homes. besides that gmail sends most stuff to spam mail so that is good

But nursing home ads have models dressed as nurses and... oy vey my legs are going wobbly....

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by jewishfiltergeek - 06 May 2012 15:34

The best option is to use an desktop program to access your email like MS Outlook, MS Windows Live Mail, Mozilla Thunderbird, Zimbra Desktop, or even Opera Mail for those that like their email in a browser, if you need to access email only via a browser use Gmail through Google Chrome or Mozilla Firefox with Ad Block Plus and Webmail Ad Blocker installed.

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Blind Beggar - 13 Sep 2012 19:14

If you insist on using browser-based email and you refuse to use Gmail :o then Microsoft's new Outlook.com is good and clean.

=====

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by E-Tek - 14 Sep 2012 19:41

E-Tek wrote on 13 Aug 2012 15:03:

I am happy to report that my K9 now blocks all google products and services, including google search (which anyway redirected to K9 search), shopping, PLAY (I remember sitting with my mother trying to figure out how to block it), plus, and books. This can only happen when you block google.com.

Why? Because It's too easy on google services to access bad content. It's kinda like having youtube not blocked and relying on webchaver- echh. Webchaver isn't perfect.

I feel free already. This is why I migrated my email to outlook.com. I recommend this for everybody male.

A note about gmail users: I opened a outlook.com account (a very clean, intuitive new email service) with the same name as gmail (except it ends @outlook.com), then I set it to forward all emails from my old account to this one, and I even set it to allow me to send emails AS my old address. (BE SURE TO SET THIS UP BEFORE BLOCKING GOOGLE....)

Wishing everyone much Hatzlacha!

Meir

=====

=====