kevin pond's advice- a bit out of the box Posted by Kevin Pond - 14 May 2012 13:28

B"H

hi tzadikim chashuvim (& i mean it!),

Every time i am here i am completely amazed by how much chizuk, love & acceptence is given here on one hand and solid advice on the other hand.

I used to think that charedi men that don't "watch dirty stuff online" are horrible, empty hypocrats. Maybe sub-humans? That was till the day (or night...) that i fell myslef... slowly but surely. It was horrible, but it was good against my ga'avah.

I am new here, but i have my piece of advise. i doubt all of you will agree with it right away, but try and give it a thought before discarding it.

i studied- & practiced succesfuly B"H- an amazing shita in chinuch habanim. One of the tools there is: if a child misbehaves, he is trying to tell you that he is a 'bad kid'. Don't fall for it. Keep telling yourslef that he is good. Also, when he is hard on a certain area, try to deal with it in the most minimal way, and relate to other areas in his life.

E.g. a kid that doesn't do his homework/ is mechutzaf gets the entire system worked up about it. The rebbi, the grandparents, the menahel etc. Don't fall for it. You can deal with it in a minimal way, but don't get hysterical/ OTT about it. Preferably, deal with another issue- good or bad. (his ) This way you are in charge, and not the kid's yetzer horo. he (kid's YH) doesnt set the scene.

Our own YH is like a little kid, trying to tell us that we are bad etc. we shouldn't believe him. Yes, we deal with it (i just started the 90 days thing myself), but we have to remember that:

- 1) we are terrific people, just struggling with an issue. (this is the feel i get here in the forumsanyways)
- 2) we should deal WITH ANOTHER ISSUE- distracting the scene from our pritzus addiction. We can work on our gaava, ta'avas ahcila & about a million other issues.

Personal experience-when i worked on my taavas achila it worked WONDERS on my 'major stuff' as well. The alter of Novardok says that a person is like a domino- work on one area, and other areas will improve as well.

Good luck to all of us!!!!!!!!
