

Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 02 Apr 2016 13:20

---

When tough days come I visit the Wall to pray, by Internet, it's the next best thing to being there, or having someone go for you. I love my close and growing connection to my Maker, if you would like my humble prayers there let me know here. We descended by lust into Egypt, and now my prayers are personally directed to the temple wall, for myself, and who ever else asks. Many others find their prayers answered too, this is one of my life support systems.

=====
=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 02 Apr 2016 13:25

---

I thank our Maker for forgiveness of my past, and strength of purpose, and that my new life is and has begun. Blessed be the Wall of the temple, where I can turn my eyes to pray, and praise the Almighty One, we are heard even now today.

=====
=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 04 Apr 2016 12:13

---

Prayed at the wall of Jerusalem by Internet our Maker that we will be able to hear and see only music that will inspire us, and that we will be able to refuse sing and images that trigger us toward lust. May each have a great day, we have leaders here who can guide you, take one more step today. Do not give up!

=====
=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 06 Apr 2016 05:37

---

Praying that those who have internet limits will be able to find access to GYE, and help from our Infinite Father of all fathers.

=====

====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 10 Apr 2016 11:11

---

Praying that we find the best in each other, and even in our enemies finding the life spark of good , that in HaShem what are in tune with the wonder One is performing, and I found a reminding spark of info on Chabad in the Thought of this day, here it is for reference.

---

Daily Thought Wonder Making

Do you want to make miracles? It's not so hard.

Let's say you see someone's faults and you truly want to help—whether it be a friend, a spouse, your child or even your nemesis.

Don't say a word about what you have found wrong. Instead, find something wondrous about that person, perhaps something that nobody ever mentions. Talk about it—to yourself, and to those who will listen and sympathize.

In very little time, you will see such a new person, you will believe you are a maker of wonders.

Indeed, we all are.

---

So as a new month and a wonderful Shabbat has been ours, as we seek to arise to the destiny of righteous men who pray, and our prayers echo here where we are, and in Jerusalem, we take real hope, for our Maker by Oneself moved our prayer to the wall, and by priest, and by friend, moved our prayers to the very wall where for hundreds of years we have left our prayers, and soon the temple shall be rebuild, and the reality of our Creator visible answering our prayers will be seen by foe and friend. We saw it first in our victory over lust. Our Maker made our eyes to always love beauty, and then One challenged us to guard them, so because we treasure the gift of beauty, I for myself, seek to honor the holiness of the woman, and guard my eyes, for each family, for each nation, for holiness of things and people being set apart, for mastery of my self, and control over what shall control the destiny of my life. May your victory be sweet today as one of your highest reminders of the wonders of our Maker is upon us. Shalom.

=====

====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 11 Apr 2016 11:05

---

There might be other GYE friends who live in Jerusalem who would be willing to take your prayers sometimes to that special place of prayer.

=====

=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by Josephsbrother - 15 Apr 2016 11:21

---

My soul longed for the forbidden, yet today I reach out to the wall of prayer, and in days take my Journey to the Mount, in spirit, to see your back with Moses, to see your temple to Be, to long for You more than for lust, be still my body, the time for Torah to be crown has come again, be still my desire, for One desire is greater than all others, that I at this nano second seek after, thank you my HaShem, you are my desires fulfilled righteously.

=====

=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.
Posted by peloni almoni - 15 Apr 2016 19:41

---

Josephsbrother wrote on 15 Apr 2016 11:21:

My soul longed for the forbidden

sayeth thou that thy soul has longeth for the forbidden.

whereas methinks thou doth mistake thy soul for thy body. for as is our physicalness but sinew that doth holdeth together bones and flesh, flushed and vitalized with life syrup which beith our ruddy blood, much in likedness to that of beast, and both of us imbued from within with evil inclination who doth jostle us hithertofore into the forbidden.

forsooth, thou shalt concede contrastingly that the soul is but radiance pure and bright, a nature of shining light and hallow bidings. and so doth scripture sayeth in genesis that One himself bleweth into the human's nostrils the soul of life. thus concludingly and henceforth, methinks forsooth thy drive was animalistic, and rooted like a weed in thy physical shell that yearned for the forbidden while thy soul yearned for One. pray do tell if i am being auricular to thou.

=====

=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.

Posted by Josephsbrother - 16 Apr 2016 11:47

---

peloni almoni wrote:

Josephsbrother wrote:

My soul longed for the forbidden

sayeth thou that thy soul has longeth for the forbidden.

whereas methinks thou doth mistake thy soul for thy body. for as is our physicalness but sinew that doth holdeth together bones and flesh, flushed and vitalized with life syrup which beith our ruddy blood, much in likedness to that of beast, and both of us imbued from within with evil inclination who doth jostle us hithertofore into the forbidden.

forsooth, thou shalt concede contrastingly that the soul is but radiance pure and bright, a nature of shining light and hallow bidings. and so doth scripture sayeth in genesis that One himself bleweth into the human's nostrils the soul of life. thus concludingly and henceforth, methinks forsooth thy drive was animalistic, and rooted like a weed in thy physical shell that yearned for the forbidden while thy soul yearned for One. pray do tell if i am being auricular to thou.

I am a man ready to be corrected. Yes indeed the breath breathed into me, was of our One, it can have no longing but of the One it came of. Auriculate yes you be!

So today I pray on this Shabbat, that this little breath may always be of Him, for the One. In this body, with its voice, may I be an image of His loving kindness!

=====

Re: Visiting the Wall in Jerusalem, pray by Internet.

Posted by Josephsbrother - 25 Apr 2016 12:07

---

At the wall, in spirit, and from time to time viewing the living present wall by Internet, if there is a GYE member who has access to the wall, could take a prayer for us, that the counting of the

Omer shall be powerful medicine for our curing as a family, and please report it here, it will not be a boast to me, it will be as a friend place our United prayer before HaShem, blessed be He, and nothing less. And DNA, if any pray there on their own concern, please let us know, for it is thrilling that we are mention as a group there, before the One, and Only One, and it was at this time! Oh infinite One receive my prayer at the wall, though I be over a thousand miles alway, and be only one son of Adam, and a want to be son of Joseph, who was buried in Israel, as an Israelite, his home, the land you gave to Israel, as and eternal covenant. Post: 365

=====

====