

The kumzitz

Posted by Kollel Guy - 17 Dec 2009 23:22

One of the hardest things I will ever have to accept, is that I chickened out of going, due to

I really wish I could rewind the clock a couple of hours and make my way over there.

nothing other than fear of showing my face.

Hopefully you'll get another opportunity within the next few weeks.

It was hard for me too to go. Of course it was awkward at first, but it was worth it!

kollel guy,

first a formal introduction,

hi my name is sturggle,

nice to "meet" you.

second,

why's it so hard to accept?

we all are familiar with that fear

and speaking for myself,

i can totally understand ur not coming.

it makes sense (to me).

so, no rewinding any clocks,

you didn't show, happens,

question is, who's gonna win next time?

Mr. Fear or Reb KG?

I just keep thinking this will one day haunt me when I become a Maggid Shiur or something (yeah right). But on the other hand, if I don't go, it will probably haunt me even more upstairs - because of all the understanding and Koach to beat this I could have attained and didn't for the stupid excuse of pride. :-\

C'mon, don't mach avek with the fact that it's not geshmak to have people walking around who know this about you. Avodas H-shem or not. You happen to be right that it's still worth it, but there's a sacrifice in there that's not small business. And I'll bet most people both in our situation and not, would not have the strength to do it. Gimme a break! The best guys in yeshivah and in kollel won't admit that they "don't know" when you ask them a question, and will pretend they can't answer now for some reason - because not knowing something is too embarrassing for them. This??!!! No way man!! Your talking some serious madregeos here...

BE"H I will come, I'm just saying it's not easy.

Actually, that's it's of the main reasons I really want to do it. I would imagine it really puts your fake ego in it's place. This time I'm BL"N gonna be strong.

So what if you become a maggid shiur? I doubt you'd be OUR magid shiur (unless you were our
). It would only be awkward if you met your talmidim or your rebbe at a GYE event.
