IT, if you have a voip line (which I think you told me you do) you and all of us who want to listen in can call a conference line (like DCs) and basically we can just mute ourselves and listen to you guys. What would the problem be with that (other than the quality)? If you don't have a voip line, it doesn't pay to call a US number on an Israeli line because it will cost a fortune. Let's figure this out, preferably before the kumzitz.

Prob is that its not in my place this time. So ive gotta find out if the host has a voip line. Which i doubt he does.

gut voch l'kulam.

i am not so excited about the idea of being at a get together with my friends (yes, that's how i view this) and having other people, albeit other friends, listening in. in other words, i am hopefully going to be present at this kumsitz with DC and i don't want there to be a number where people can call in.

if you can show up, and you'd like to, look forward to seeing you there.

if you cannot show up, i'm guessing due to geographic or gender reasons, arrange your own.

you'll be able to listen to a recording afterwards anyway...

im totally with sturggle on this one.

if u want to have a meeting,then have it.

but if ur just gonna listen in while others make that move....

im still trying to collect people to have a ny kumzits.

and if someone could volunteer their place that would be awesome
