buzz?

Posted by aaron - 16 Feb 2011 20:52

_____

anyone know how to completely disable/block google buzz so that it is inaccessable?

==

Re: buzz?

Posted by Yosef Hatzadik - 16 Feb 2011 21:18

_____

In the 'Settings' on the top right corner of your Gmail page there is a tab for Buzz. You can delete your profile & block it from there.

==

Re: buzz?

Posted by aaron - 16 Feb 2011 23:26

_____

prob is that i keep going back for more..... :'(anyone know of a filter that can block just this element of gmail?

==

Re: buzz?

Posted by im not alone - 20 Feb 2011 20:01

_____

k9 filter

you could select a specific website to block, so just copy and paste the buzz link (should be something like mail.google.com/mail.........#buzz) to the k9 block list, it should work

(you also could block the category "social networking" which will block every social network such as twitter/facebook etc.)

hold on tight

your brother

==
====

Re: buzz?
Posted by DovInIsrael - 21 Feb 2011 14:44
_____

try unplugging your computer every time you go to buzz

you'll get so fed up with having to reconnect all the cables - you'll stop using buzz

==
====

Re: buzz?
Posted by im not alone - 22 Feb 2011 02:09
_____

hey this might be helpful

ToAdd wrote on 17 Feb 2011 06:39:

I know what you're going through. Soical networking was a nightmare for me.

Even for other people, CNet describes it: "Google's new social-networking tool Buzz is at its root an unwanted, unasked for pest."

You can see their article here on how to turn it off:

news.cnet.com/8301-17939_109-10451703-2.html

It is a bit of work, but will be well worth the effort.

Keep well.

)

==
====

Re: buzz?
Posted by aaron - 23 Feb 2011 03:18
_____

switched e-mail providers.... think it should do the trick

==
====

(oh, i didnt chap it was posted to you