

The other side

Posted by BruceWayne - 22 Nov 2009 00:56

I recently came across some short autobiographical stories of pn actresses (and even actors). The following is a behind the scenes look at what goes on. Degradation, drugs (both on the set to get through the scene and off the set), abuse (particularly in childhood), depression, empty and shattered lives. It's standard fare, and this is one of the more tame examples.

So next time you feel like looking at some of that stuff, just remember that you're getting a finished product that is nothing but a lie. It's all smoke and mirrors elegantly designed to cover up the pain and the horrors that really go on.

You would also be contributing to someone's ruin (not just yours). Since you're nice guys, you wouldn't want to ruin someone's entire life, right?

Right?

I started in the porn industry back in 2003 when I was 19. It started with me doing a little nude modeling here and there, then it progressed into internet work and then I met an "agent". It all went downhill from there. The money was great for a 19 year old! But I didn't enjoy being on set and feeling degraded.

I loved the attention from everyone but now that I look back, that's not the kind of attention I deserved. But, I was young, naive, motivated by the money and the "fame". It was easy for an agent to take advantage of me, and many did.

Over the course of my porn career I have been belittled and treated like a piece of trash more than I could have ever imagined in a lifetime I would. I wasn't a woman in any of these directors eyes, I was nothing to them. The male talent at times were nice, but sometimes, they were horrible. I've had men choke me, slap me, thrust me so hard until I couldn't walk and this would happen even after I would tell them to stop. They have no respect for women.

There were always drugs and we would binge on Ecstasy, Cocaine, Marijuana, Valium, Vicodin and alcohol. I thank God I am even still here! I also did "escorting" in the porn industry for agencies where we were sent to Las Vegas to do "privates". I also know agents who lie to the girls and tell them they are shooting a scene when instead they set up prostitution acts for them.

I have cried and screamed and almost lost it at times because of this horrible industry. I have now been on Lexapro since January because I dropped to 85 lbs and it was from all the stress and anxiety from this business. I am now back up to 103 lbs and feeling better, but it's going to be a long time until I fully recover. It sucks you in and is hard to get out, but once you do get out... it's the greatest feeling ever. Although it's an extremely difficult and uphill battle, I know I'll be okay. The industry is infected with drugs and disease. I have had multiple tests come back positive for Chlamydia and gonorrhea. My so-called friends and ex introduced me to a variety of drugs and we were on a 6 month binge. All my money went to partying and my car got reposed, I got evicted, had run-ins with the police, almost lost my contract and lost touch with my family. I almost always had to be "messed up" on set to get through it. I look back and it makes me sick because that is not the person my dad raised me to be.

I am so grateful for my son because I got pregnant and that's what made me stop partying! I was in a relationship with a Kris Slater who is also in the industry and I thought everything was great until he started getting really controlling and abusing me. He would choke me, throw me around and verbally abuse me. I thought things would get better but it continued for 3 years. I had him arrested twice and the second time, this last February was the last time I was ever going to let him do that again. He threw chairs at our son and I was not going to let anything happen to him. There is now a restraining order and I have temporary full custody and am going to fight until the end for my son to have a loving and peaceful upbringing.

My worst scene I have ever been through was the one I did when I was pregnant. That is going to be the hardest thing for me to get over. It makes me so mad that the father of my baby and ex Kris Slater would even support that and let me do it. He should have been a man and helped out!

Although, I'm very angry and hurt, I am finally learning to love again and let someone into my life after being numb for so long. When I was shooting I was blocking all emotion and it was effecting my personal relationships with everyone. I had no "real" sex life and was showed no affection because I was used to doing the motions of something fake.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by kanesher - 02 Dec 2009 20:30

Youch!

Odd thing is , I dropped porn a while ago with the help of merciless filters - but I remember that this was my main motivation. Their eyes. They all played their parts like bad actresses but the men were never acting and they were cruel animals - as was I in my sick fantasy land - but only good actresses can act with their eyes. Their eyes almost always screamed "stop! stop! stop! stop! stop hurting and degrading and using me!" - rare is the woman who truly wants to be used, even one who's done it over and over again. I couldn't take that. I remember a site bragging that they always made girls cry. I couldn't take, and that put me on the road to recovery. Still not home, but at least porn free. An addict yes - in fantasy land we don't hurt anyone - but porn was too real, because those things actually happened, and I saw real pain and I couldn't enjoy even in the throes of my worst days, and I refuse to hurt or enjoy a dog being tortured, heck - in camp when kids picked off the legs of a spider I protested - never mind a "consenting" - that is, taken total emotional and fiscal advantage of - human being. And if we didn't watch it, pay for it, - this torture wouldn't happen. End of story.

You know, I've read about "John School" for men caught with a first offense with a prostitute - and they tell you about the realities of prostitution, the pain, degradation, disease, abuse, and what they really think about the "johns". Perhaps it's time for "porn school"...

Keep on posting.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by BruceWayne - 03 Dec 2009 00:11

kanesher wrote on 02 Dec 2009 20:30:

Youch!

Odd thing is , I dropped porn a while ago

Well I haven't completely cleansed myself of it yet, which is mostly why I do this. It's more for me than you.

And yes, I will continue.

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by BruceWayne - 03 Dec 2009 00:31

PART TWO:

As quick as that the glamour of being a porn star was gone. In the five years I was shooting I caught Gonorrhea and Chlamydia many times. Sometimes both at the same time about every 3-5 months.

Catching these STD's makes you so sick! Your stomach hurts your back and my private parts were on fire of pain. It sucked! And also you get yeast infections and bladder infections pretty often too. A lot of people get herpes. I was lucky that I didn't.

I continued in the industry because my life was ruled by a porn star lifestyle. And this lifestyle was very destructive. Besides catching STD's as a porn star, there were more bad things. I soon became friends with other porn girls and we would do nothing but drink all day. Or take pain killers all day. I soon got addicted to alcohol and pain killers (Vicodin and narcotics).

You first start taking pain killers to get through your scenes, especially [edit]. Even agents would tell their girls to take them so they could do a good scene and the agent would get a pat on the back by directors for having such good talent. My addiction grew and I would drive home from shoots totally trashed. If I would have been pulled over I would have gone to jail for a D.U.I for sure! I even had good friends call me asking me to pick them up from their shoot because they were too [edit] up to drive home. It was sad because the companies that would shoot us would know what was going on and they would even support it sometimes.

A lot of times when I shot for certain companies, I would know I didn't need to bring my own alcohol because it would always be on set for them and the talent. Note: It's completely illegal to give talent alcohol or drugs when they are shooting. I even got hurt on set where the director and all the crew knew I was drinking. I had to go to the hospital because they didn't clear off the set properly and I ran into glass and had to get 8 stitches on my ankle. I went back and did the shoot because I wanted to be a "good porn star" for the company. I wanted to get more work from them maybe even a contract. That didn't happen. I wish I would have thought about myself.

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by BruceWayne - 09 Dec 2009 06:21

Check out these facts.

Why am I showing them to you?

Because we must know the enemy if we are to slay it. And it is quite the beast. The porn industry is a revenue-generating monster (a monstrosity it is).

Why should you care how big the industry is and how much money it generates?

Because the government won't shut it down, that's why. Same reason they haven't killed the tobacco tycoons even though smoking kills, even second hand. And so does porn. Also second hand.

What does it mean?

It means we're on our own. A million to one. Lone knights fighting through the darkness against all odds to save ourselves and others, out of personal interest and a greater calling of justice.

Pornography Industry Statistics

Size of the Industry $57.0 billion world-wide - $12.0 billion US

Adult Videos $20.0 billion

Magazines $ 7.5 billion

Phone Sex $ 4.5 billion

Cable & Pay Per View $ 2.5 billion

Internet $ 2.5 billion

CD-Rom $ 1.5 billion

Novelties $ 1.0 billion

Other $ 1.5 billion

Porn revenue is larger than all combined revenues of all professional football, baseball and basketball franchises.

US porn revenue exceeds the combined revenues of ABC, CBS, and NBC (6.2 billion)

Child pornography generates $3 billion annually

I couldn't believe that last one. What does that say about society??

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by imtrying25 - 09 Dec 2009 12:50

SICK!

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by kanesher - 09 Dec 2009 15:34

Sick isn't the answer. It means we've forgotten how to live on a societal level. When you open the TV and everyone is lying and everyone knows it and people still vote for the best liar...you've gotten realize, we've forgotten how to be in touch with ourselves. Forgotten how to live.

The abuse, the pain, the emptiness, the broken homes and broken marriages and broken hearts - porn is just a giant band aid put on all of it. Don't we know that better than everyone? And it's a self-propelling cycle. the industry breaks more hearts, which requires more porn. An addicted society - a society remember is just a bunch of people.

Yeah, just like the drug industry. Spend forty billion dollars fighting it - but as long as we feel empty, we will always find a way to get our drug of choice. End of story.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by BruceWayne - 09 Dec 2009 15:55

I've got more fun statistics for later.

Voting for the best liar? Why, you couldn't possibly be referring to Barak Hussein Obama now, could you? He would never tell a lie.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by Lamplighter - 10 Dec 2009 05:33

These stories are telling. Whenever a person views porn, c/v, besides doing an aveira the the person is also the beneficiary of another human being's suffering. We can assume that any given "actor" or "actress" in the industry is a suffering, broken soul.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by imtrying25 - 10 Dec 2009 10:53

Sick isn't the answer.

Hey K-nesh. I wasnt trying to say that it was the answer. I was trying to summarize all that he wrote in one word. Especially the part with the kids ugh ugh ugh

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by BruceWayne - 10 Dec 2009 19:29

Since the law is that "models" must be 18 or older, technically stuff portraying a 17 year old who's one day shy of 18 is "child porn".

But I seriously doubt that that's what this disturbing statistic is referring to.

=====
=====

Re: The other side
Posted by imtrying25 - 10 Dec 2009 22:59

No it most definitely is not referring to that. And thats what makes this whole thing so sick.

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by BruceWayne - 11 Dec 2009 01:59

Here's more fun facts.

It may seem random, but I'm building up to a point.

You'll just have to keep checking in....

Pornographic websites 4.2 million (12% of total websites)

Pornographic pages 372 million (one page per US citizen!)

Daily pornographic search engine requests 68 million (25% of total search engine requests)

Daily pornographic emails 2.5 billion (8% of total emails)

Average daily pornographic emails/user 4.5 per Internet user

Monthly Pornographic downloads (Peer-to-peer) 1.5 billion (35% of all downloads)

Daily "child pornography" requests 116 thousand on peer-to-peer

Websites offering illegal child pornography 100 thousand

Worldwide visitors to pornographic web sites 72 million annually

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by lamed vavnik - 12 Dec 2009 16:41

the stories are fantastic . they kill my taivah like an electric shock .you have no idea how long to this day i am fighting ideas of private relations taught to me by porn. i can't shake them b/c i never had the flip side to disgust me.

thank you .

please keep it up Master Wayne .

=====
=====

Re: The other side

Posted by lamed vavnik - 12 Dec 2009 16:42

=====
=====

P.S. give me a good sick one!Gross me out! i wanna get nausious on my key board! . >