This would be a great group to have here! I too am a sexual abuse victim and have many questions and concerns regarding this topic. I have a feeling that sexual abuse victims can have different types of the same kind of challenges. In other words, even if we struggle with the same problems as everyone else, the cause might be completely different, hence the healing approach should be different as well. It would be helpful to have a professional who deals with this subject to help guide us specifically, but I'm not sure how easy it will be to make that happen. Maybe the administrators/moderators know more on what can be done. What do you think, Dov? (If you're on here)
