

Help me/other support GYE

Posted by doingtshuva - 13 Oct 2020 22:43

Hi Chevra,

I would need your help!

I would like to donate to GYE but I fear that my wife will notice it later on the statements. I am looking for way to be able to donate through cash anonymously.

Any Ideas ??

?Am I alone with this dilemma ??

Blame it on a Rav pushing for it , or say that you have a friend who was really helped and or to be a zechusvthat you and your children be safe from it etc

Can you just say it's something you saw bring advertised online and though it was a worthy cause?

Or maybe you can use the opportunity to tell her the truth. That you've been using the services of gye because you struggle and that gye is helping you so you want to give backa bbi...

just a thought

No joke - I told my wife sometime back that I'm on gye. She did not like it. Definitely contributed

Back to the topic at hand.

TeshuvaGuy, I'm sure you can simply give it to a gye brother in your neighborhood. There's typically a gye or 2 in every neighborhood, maybe you're next door and I didn't know??

I have it set up with paypal it comes up on my cc as PAYPAL *GYE CORP, don't know if that helps.

I know Paypal has an option to donate with their Giving fund that comes up as PAYPAL *GIVING FUND I think you can donate to any registered charity you just have to search for it on their website.

www.paypal.com/fundraiser/charity/1954147 obviously double check that.

Am I alone with this issue ?

How about if GYE would set up in the big Jewish cities an address where you can post your donation ?

Many organizations have this method set up worldwide.

Yes. You can upload cash by using the barcode in the PayPal app at a participating retailer like Walmart, 7-Eleven, CVS, Walgreens.
