Yesterday, Zlatah Yentah was sitting on her mother's lap and pretending to feed her mother supper.

She picks up the fork with the "chicken" on it and says, "Mommy, one chicken at a time, one chicken at a time"

And my little son said this morning, "I wanna be a gibbor atzum," so I said, "ly"h....till 120."

One day at a time...

My kids said, "Look; there's a bird playin' a guitar!"

I took a look and said, "Thank God! It's not a little tiny blue bird on an old fogie; but rather, it was a

I was at a couple of Simchos this weekend, and at each I searched in vain for the Woodford (I always look for it, but then I'm too scared to take any, what if someone notices and realizes the significance?). But at each simcha I found another bourbon, which said on the label that it was made in "Bardstown KY 40004".

So I made a silent L'Chaim for the Rebbe (Sheyachzor Veyisgale Lonu Bimheiro Biyomeinu Omain!!!) and his holy ~~truckers~~ Chassidim. I hope nobody overheard as I whispered "Keep on Trucking...."

BTW that sounds like the perfect name for the GYE musical group we were going to form. "Rebbe Bards and the Holy Truckers Band".

Here's the lineup so far:

Vocals - Zemmy

Guitar - TehillimZugger

Drums - Gibbor120

Pyrotechnic effects - Noorah

anyone else?

We've got plenty of trucks to shlep our gear around, and I have a tour bus, thanks to Alex.

;D ;D ;D ;D ;D ;D ;D ;D

We now have plenty of guitars to go around!

Whenever I drink tea or 7up... speaking of which... I believe she is mom.

I am reminded of cords whenever I drink tea.

Whenever the car passes a truck, I think of mark.

BTW based on the stores and advertisements I've seen this is probably not an easy place to Guard Your Eyes...
