An english guy comes to America. When he gets to the hotel where he is staying, he asks someone where the lifts are. The guy answers "Lifts!? you must mean the elevators. they're over there"

English Guy: "These American barbarians, they steal our language and change all the correct wording"

American Guy: "Sir, it is true that you invented the language, but we invented the elevator, so the name goes by what we call it"

No, but we did invent FOOTBALL!!!

Yes you invented a game but couldn't think up an original name. So you called it football.

Then you realised that football is already the name of the most beautiful and popular game in the world (with the exception of the USA) so you invented a name for our sport.

No thanks.

"Stuff they have or do in England"

Argue with Americans about football.

Actually forget it, they argue even when they're online....

My two canadian* cents about the issue. SPURRRRRRRRTS IZ OOOOOOOOOOOOSIR.

That in mind, each country should be fighting about how they have it wrong and that's why it's mutar for them to be watching in their own country.

*Cause then I'm neutral, (don't get me started on Switzerland and their "neutrality") Cause on the one hand they feer zich british and the other hand they are america's neighbors and buddies
