Some funny quotes

"Why does Sea World have a seafood restaurant?? I'm halfway through my fish burger and I realize, Oh man....I could be eating a slow learner."

"I'm in no condition to drive...wait! I shouldn't listen to myself, I'm drunk!" -Homer J. Simpson

"I do not like broccoli. And I haven't liked it since I was a little kid and my mother made me eat it. And I'm President of the United States and I'm not going to eat any more broccoli." -George Bush.

"You have to stay in shape. My grandmother, she started walking five miles a day when she was 60. She's 97 today and we don't know where the heck she is."

"The pen is mightier than the sword, and considerably easier to write with."

"Sometimes I lie awake at night, and I ask, 'Where have I gone wrong?' Then a voice says to me, 'This is going to take more than one night.' "

"On my first day in New York a guy asked me if I knew where Central Park was. When I told him I didn't he said, 'Do you mind if I mug you here?'."

A joke

1)A young Jewish man was visiting a psychiatrist, hoping to cure his eating and sleeping disorder. "Every thought I have turns to my mother," he told the psychiatrist. "As soon as I fall asleep and begin to dream, everyone in my dream turns into my mother. I wake up so upset that all I can do is go downstairs and eat a piece of toast."

The psychiatrist replied, "What, just one piece of toast for a big boy like you?"

The New Bell-Ringer!
Was really H₂SO₄

After Quasimodo's death, the bishop of the cathedral of Notre Dame sent word through the streets of Paris that a new bell-ringer was needed. The bishop decided that he would conduct the interviews personally and went up into the belfry to begin the screening process.

After observing several applicants demonstrate their skills, he decided to call it a day when a lone, armless man approached him and announced that he was there to apply for the bell-ringer's job.

The bishop was incredulous, "But you have no arms!"

"No matter," said the man, "Observe!" He then began striking the bells with his face, producing a beautiful melody on the carillon. The bishop listened in astonishment, convinced that he had finally found a suitable replacement for Quasimodo! Suddenly, as the armless man was rushing forward to strike a bell, he tripped and plunged headlong out of the belfry window to his death in the street below.

The stunned bishop rushed downstairs to his side. When he reached the street, a crowd had gathered around the fallen figure, drawn by the beautiful music they had heard only moments before. As they silently parted to let the bishop through, one of them asked, "Bishop, who was this man?"

(But wait, there's more...)

The following day, despite the sadness that weighed heavily on his heart due to the unfortunate death of the armless campanologist (now there's a great trivia question for you), the bishop continued his interviews for a new bell-ringer of the cathedral of Notre Dame.

The first man to approach him said, "Your excellency, I am the brother of the poor armless wretch that fell to his death from this very belfry yesterday. I pray that you honor his life by allowing me to replace him in this sacred duty!"

"I don't know his name," the bishop sadly replied, "but his face rings a bell..."

The bishop agreed to give the man an audition, and as the armless man's brother stooped to pick up the heavy mallet to strike the first bell, he groaned suddenly, clutched at his chest, and dropped dead on the spot. Two monks, hearing the bishop's cries of grief at this second tragedy, rushed up the stairs to his side. "What has happened?" they asked breathlessly, "Who is this man?"

[Now wait for it...]

OK, last one for now and then I'll shut up:

OBITUARIES - Sad News for the Baking Community as Poppin' Fresh Pops Off...

Please join me today in remembering a great icon of the baking community, the Pillsbury Doughboy, who died yesterday of complications from a yeast infection and abdominal trauma from repeated pokes in the belly. He was 71. Doughboy was buried in a lightly greased coffin, his gravesite piled high with flours. The funeral was held at 3:50 for about 20 minutes.

Dozens of celebrities turned out to pay their final respects, including Mrs. Butterworth, Hungry Jack, Betty Crocker, Sara Lee, Duncan Hines, and Captain Crunch. Aunt Jemima delivered the eulogy and lovingly described Doughboy as a man who never knew how much he was kneaded. "Doughboy's fame rose quickly, but his later life was filled with turnovers. He was known to be a smart cookie, but alas, wasted much of his dough on half-baked schemes. Despite his being a little flaky at times and a crusty old man, he was still a positive roll model for millions and loved by all!"

Doughboy is survived by his wife Play-Dough, and their three children, John Dough, Jane Dough and Dosey Dough - plus, they were expecting one more in the oven. Doughboy is also survived by his elderly father, Pop Tart.

Doughboy's final wish to those who knew him was: "Remember to always rise to the occasion, and share a smile with someone else who may be having a crumby day and kneads a lift..."

After 120 years, a Breslover and a Lubavitcher unfortunately ended up in Gehinom.

“Rebbe Nachman! Help me! Help me!” shouted the Breslover. Two giant hands appeared and pulled him out of Gehinom by his peyos.

“Rebbe! Rebbe! Help me!” shouted the Lubavitcher.

A loud voice boomed out, “You’re on shlichus!”

crazy story, but what a line!

ontheedgeman wrote:

wow I might be ahead in the stepwork, but you going to SA and doing full sharing is monster. they'll eventually push the steps on you and you'll thrive, BH.

yesterday I had a scare. I went out to take pictures of the moon, my wife was on the computer and into her own thing. She didn't hear that I was leaving. Well I came home, and as I was walking up the stairs, I heard WAILING coming from the house. My wife is pregnant and this greatly distressed me. I came in and my wife was having a full out panic/crying/wailing attack, lying on the floor. I was totally confused and scared and didn't know what was going on. She couldn't catch her breath, and was literally shrieking. "Where were you!!! Where were you!!" she had been using Facebook for the first time, and freaked out about the information that suddenly appeared and what was getting out about her. She couldn't reach me on my cell and didn't know where I went.

I'll tell you what I normally would have done to this manipulative insanity. I would have yelled, shouted real loud, started to punch things in the house like the wall or the mirror, primarily to cause injury to myself. I then would have drunk a bottle of wine or two, gone for a massage, and gotten away.

This time, because my wife is pregnant and i was seriously concerned about her physical and mental health, and also because I prostrated myself in the morning, I focused on what the proper, spiritual thing to do would be. I focused on trying to get her to breath. I held her hand and calmly but forcefully guided her to focus on her breathing, not to worry about Facebook, or about where I was. i continued to hold her hand, calm her down, and eventually she calmed down. At one point I did cry, I was petrified. Thank Gcd she is okay, we heard kicking.

why did this happen? my wife later asked me where I really went. I said, to try to take a picture of the moon. Earlier there was a beautiful sliver in the sky, it looked like a smiley face for Adar, and I thought how cool a pic that would be. Anyhow, she rightfully didn't trust where I had been. So I'm living in the consequences of my hurtful behaviour, I accept it, and put my trust in Gcd to protect me and my family from everything.

The irony of course is that in leaving the house to take a picture of the moon, I came home to lunacy! ;-)
