

where are they???

Posted by lavi - 29 Aug 2014 14:18

i noticed today that there are close to 1000 members currently on line.

why are there only around 30 people who post??

do the rest only like reading??

do they nod their heads and say uh huh to everything??

do they read the posts at all?

maybe the online connection fuses them with strength, without evening doing anything??

are they afraid that their input is traceable somehow??

or maybe not ready to face anything?

maybe no time to type??

maybe it is boring for them??

i'm really trying to understand.

look here man, zemmy.

you are from THE OTHER SIDE, you got no bin'ness in this colomn, in which we are carefully ananalizing what gye is really up too. you are spying!!

listen carefully, between 9494 and I, we can make mincemeat out of you...er giraffemeat...either way its kosher... and the next cholent you'll be serving is your own!!!

um, did i ever tell you about my drones? they distribute cholent on demand but are also armed with delayed-fuse-kishka missiles and magnesium-herring flares... jus' sayin' and to paraphrase a joke i heard about the Chicago police:

How many ~~Chicago cops~~ Moderators does it take to throw a suspect down a flight of stairs?

Speakin' of sides, here is the startin' lineup for the ZZZ team!

none, he slipped

TZ at point guard

Nitzy at shootin' guard

Lizzy at small forward

Netzach at power forward

the man in the Middle....Zemmy

Do we got a ZZZ coach?

I was wondering that also. then i got to the wall of honor and i got an email about some hidden forum. My first thought was "aha that's where all the people are" then I went there and there were only about two threads and five posts so i realized that wasn't the answer.

maybe all the thousand of others are still hanging out on the gyu forum and have secret passwords, and the whole business of the new forum was just to get rid of the "simple" guys.

GYU?

Guard Your Unanumun? ????????

(p.s. This is an official appeal for more creative conspiracy theories.)
