Obviously, the "bad word deleted" button doesn't work anymore either.

What is "bad word deleted" button? Was there such a thing?

Confused.

I Hit "Quick Reply" on mobile

1) This is urgent

2) The quotes work here

Cordnoy is kidding. If you'd leave the website design upto him, this place would look a little different...

[i][b]GUARD - I'M TESTING "QUOTE"[/b][/i]

I saw the red line, wasn't sure, but tried to click the arrow on right of red line

nothin' urgent

i was kiddin' to explain why I was writing QUICK reply - Because I just wanted to point out urgently not to take cordnoys web design input totally serious - although listen to him for the other 99% when you quote a post and want to type under it the only way to get "out" of the quote is to click Source and then put in a line break after the end tag. I don't see a way in the WYSIWYG editor, if you click Enter at the end of the post yu're just extending the quote.

Warning: Spoiler!

Reply has more features, like tables, adding files, etc... But for most cases, quick reply should be enough, which is awesome!! No more need to reload page to reply.

That's nice.

There is a few second delay when usin' the quote button.

Confused.

When one would write "bad words" in a post, like "arms" or "flicks" or "darn," the editor would automatically "strike it out," and insert in its place "bar word deleted." You were cussin' at us above, and the editor let it remain.

On the other pages today, I have a totally new input box that was different. When I press enter, the whole screen jumps, the text looks different. This editor is great, but I'm having trouble on other pages.
