

Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!

Posted by doingtshuva - 03 Mar 2016 10:43

Breaking Free Chizuk #1439

On behalf of all of GYE - staff, volunteers, and members on both sides of the mechitza - we join in wishing a heartfelt MAZEL TOV to the GYE founder and guard, Yakov, on the occasion of his son's marriage.

May the newlyweds build Bais Ne'emon b'Yisroel, binyan adei ad, and may you only recieve good and uplifting news rom them. V'yizku lehagdil bonim uvnei bonim oiskim b'Toירו ub'Mitzvois, and especially b'tzorchei tzibbur b'emunah just like you have been for at least the last decade. And may G-d Almighty bless you to continue your growth mechayil el choyil.

Mazel tov!

On behalf of GYE,

Mottel

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!

Posted by doingtshuva - 03 Mar 2016 11:00

With full of Hakarat Hatov for all your holy work, I would like to wish you a heartfelt Mazel Tov.

May you be zoche together with your wife to see many many naches from your whole entire family.

We are part of your extended family, so may you see lots of naches from us as well.

siman tov umazal tov

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!

Posted by ddm11219 - 03 Mar 2016 15:12

????? ?????? ?????????? - ??????? ??? ??

=====

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!

Posted by goodchange613 - 03 Mar 2016 20:12

Mazel Tov!!!

=====

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!

Posted by Mesayin - 03 Mar 2016 20:37

Mazel tov Mazel tov! May you see bracha, hatzlacha, simcha v'nachas, m'shefa koidesh with harchuvas ha'da'as and simcha b'gashmeeyis ib'ruchneeyis.

May you continue to help out klal yisroel come closer to Hashem.

May this zivug be oileh yafah and it should be a bayis ne'eman b'yisroel mitoich simcha v'nachas.

May this simcha be mashpia simchas to everybody across GYE, Umein!

=====

=====

Mazal Tov Guard! Who has presents?

Posted by markz - 13 Mar 2016 01:41

I would have preferred to write on the original "Mazal Tov! Who has presents?" thread, yet it's locked, so here goes

THE.GUARD wrote:

Mazal Tov! We welcomed a new baby boy to our family this morning - Alef Adar.

Mishenichnas Adar Marbim Be'Simcha!

I'm sure you all want to wish me a great big Mazal Tov and wish you could do something special for me. So I'm indeed going to be selfish and ask you all to give me something special in honor of this happy day: I want to ask each and every person on this forum, in honor of the new baby - and to show me just how much you really appreciate the GUE network, TO MAKE A NEW PUSH FOR IT TODAY, AND PROMISE YOURSELVES NEVER EVER EVER TO GIVE UP IN THIS STRUGGLE, NO MATTER WHAT!

Just by way of example, here's one amazing gift I got: Today is the last day of Jack's half-a-year milestone. Now THAT'S what I'm talking about!

If you want, you can post your fresh resolve and new Kabbalos below. Those are the gifts I will take with me to the bris IY"H next week when we are Zoche to bring another holy Jewish soul into the covenant of Avraham Avinu.

Your parents circumcised you when you were 8 days old. But the real question is: Are you ready now to circumcise your heart for Hashem?

P.S. If I am unable to post as often as usual in the coming days, I ask everyone's forgiveness, I'm sure you understand.

Binyomin5766 wrote:

...You should merit to see your son bring you great nachas!

As I approach my next milestone, I resolve to make more effort to guard my eyes in regards to TV and movies. I plan to do so by increasing my Torah study during times when I would normally watch the box with my family.

[quote"boruch" post=3308]...Here's my small gift to the Eibishter in honor of your big Simcha.

I will shift all non-work, nonfinancial and non-shopping Internet viewing including my posts on these forums to Firefox with AdBlock Plus and in addition to standard lists for AdBlock Plus, I will, ASAP, block all images with any female representation, regardless of how tzniusdik or pareve they may seem to be. And if Firefox does not work well or does not work at all, then that will be my small korban to the Eibishter in honor of your son's bris..[/quote]

Guys - Our President Guard doesn't challenge us as he used to back in the day.

Anyone want to commit to something really really small, on occasion of the recent marriage of Guards 1st child? I promise you guard would love such gifts

Postit right here, and thanks dt

PostalServicio wrote the best line of all

I'm definitely jealous that your new son has you as a father!

I second that!!!

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!
Posted by markz - 13 Mar 2016 02:05

[color: #0000CD]I would have preferred to write on the original "Mazal Tov! Who has presents?" thread, yet it's locked, so here goes[/color]

THE.GUARD wrote:

Mazal Tov! We welcomed a new baby boy to our family this morning - Alef Adar.

[color: #FF0000]Mishenichnas Adar Marbim Be'Simcha! [/color]

I'm sure you all want to wish me a great big Mazal Tov and wish you could do something special for me. So I'm indeed going to be selfish and ask you all to give me something special in honor of this happy day: I want to ask each and every person on this forum, in honor of the new baby - and to show me just how much you really appreciate the GUE network, TO MAKE A NEW PUSH FOR IT TODAY, AND PROMISE YOURSELVES NEVER EVER EVER TO GIVE UP IN THIS STRUGGLE, NO MATTER WHAT!

Just by way of example, here's one amazing gift I got: Today is the last day of Jack's half-a-year milestone. Now THAT'S what I'm talking about!

If you want, you can post your fresh resolve and new Kabbalos below. Those are the gifts I will take with me to the bris IY"H next week when we are Zoche to bring another holy Jewish soul into the covenant of Avraham Avinu.

Your parents circumcised you when you were 8 days old. But the real question is: Are you ready now to circumcise your heart for Hashem?

P.S. If I am unable to post as often as usual in the coming days, I ask everyone's forgiveness, I'm sure you understand.

Binyomin5766 wrote:

...You should merit to see your son bring you great nachas!

As I approach my next milestone, I resolve to make more effort to guard my eyes in regards to TV and movies. I plan to do so by increasing my Torah study during times when I would normally watch the box with my family.

boruch wrote:

...Here's my small gift to the Eibishter in honor of your big Simcha.

I will shift all non-work, nonfinancial and non-shopping Internet viewing including my posts on these forums to Firefox with AdBlock Plus and in addition to standard lists for AdBlock Plus, I will, ASAP, block all images with any female representation, regardless of how tzniusdik or pareve they may seem to be. And if Firefox does not work well or does not work at all, then that will be my small korban to the Eibishter in honor of your son's bris...

[color: #0000CD]Guys - Our President Guard doesn't challenge us as he used to back in the day.

Anyone want to commit to something really really small, on occasion of the recent marriage of Guards 1st child?

I promise you guard would love such gifts

Postit right here, and thanks dt

PostalServicio [color: #0000CD]wrote the best line of all

I'm definitely jealous that your new son has you as a father!

I second that!!!![/color]

=====

Re: Lets wish Guard a mazel tov!
Posted by markz - 13 Mar 2016 02:07

I would have preferred to write on the original "Mazal Tov! Who has presents?" thread, yet it's locked, so here goes

THE.GUARD wrote:

Mazal Tov! We welcomed a new baby boy to our family this morning - Alef Adar.

[color: #FF0000]Mishenichnas Adar Marbim Be'Simcha! [/color]

I'm sure you all want to wish me a great big Mazal Tov and wish you could do something special for me. So I'm indeed going to be selfish and ask you all to give me something special in honor of this happy day: I want to ask each and every person on this forum, in honor of the new baby - and to show me just how much you really appreciate the GUE network, TO MAKE A NEW PUSH FOR IT TODAY, AND PROMISE YOURSELVES NEVER EVER EVER TO GIVE UP IN THIS STRUGGLE, NO MATTER WHAT!

Just by way of example, here's one amazing gift I got: Today is the last day of Jack's half-a-year milestone. Now THAT'S what I'm talking about!

If you want, you can post your fresh resolve and new Kabbalos below. Those are the gifts I will take with me to the bris IY"H next week when we are Zoche to bring another holy Jewish soul into the covenant of Avraham Avinu.

Your parents circumcised you when you were 8 days old. But the real question is: Are you ready now to circumcise your heart for Hashem?

P.S. If I am unable to post as often as usual in the coming days, I ask everyone's forgiveness, I'm sure you understand.

Binyomin5766 wrote:

...You should merit to see your son bring you great nachas!

As I approach my next milestone, I resolve to make more effort to guard my eyes in regards to TV and movies. I plan to do so by increasing my Torah study during times when I would normally watch the box with my family.

boruch wrote:

...Here's my small gift to the Eibishter in honor of your big Simcha.

I will shift all non-work, nonfinancial and non-shopping Internet viewing including my posts on these forums to Firefox with AdBlock Plus and in addition to standard lists for AdBlock Plus, I will, ASAP, block all images with any female representation, regardless of how tzniusdik or pareve they may seem to be. And if Firefox does not work well or does not work at all, then that will be my small korban to the Eibishter in honor of your son's bris...

Guys - Our President Guard doesn't challenge us as he used to back in the day.

Anyone want to commit to something really really small, on occasion of the recent marriage of Guards 1st child?

I promise you guard would love such gifts

Postit right here, and thanks dt

PostalServicio wrote the best line of all

I'm definitely jealous that your new son has you as a father!

I second that!!!

=====

=====