Old amazing quote from the frum Matisyahu (not sure where he is now):

"Digging deep for eternal treasure...Stay away from quicksand and false pleasure!

If its roots are cut off, how can we feed this flower...

Might look pretty, temporary, but rotting within the hour.

Disconnected from its source, with no footsteps to follow, chasing death, disguised as life..."

And what did we learn the best?

and we were taught practice makes perfect

And since no one is perfect, why practice?
