You know why Darwins theory didn't last?

"Survival of the fittest" applies to theories too

Since you put that up ironically, I'm going to argue with it by agreeing.

In our struggle you can't fight with brute force or logic. We have to be able to adapt to the yetzer and come up with new innovative techniques as he does. I think we see that in the way the gedolim's positions on technology have evolved throughout the past few decades.

It wasn't put up ironically. It was simply telling ploni that in order to survive and recover, one must be acceptable and adaptable to changing of anything even ones identity. Inna, what do you mean by "the gedolim's change of position on technology"?

I mean that it used to be completely treif to have any shaychus to the internet and now there's at the very least acceptance for using filtered internet for work.

Obviously everyone needs to ask their rov for guidance.

Which lesson?

"Live life to the fullest"

"Enjoy the moment, it's never coming back"

"We can learn a lot about happiness from little children"

"If you don't want to share the cake just bite into it"

I don't want to mach ah machlokes, but i need to dingzach. your first and second lessons are the same.

A lot of good points were made, which reinforces the important rule that "Everything I need to know in life, I learnt in kindergarten"
