

What are you listening to?

Posted by lifebound - 30 Jan 2018 06:23

Hey friends. I've had this song on repeat the last few days, and I thought I'd share it here. Then I thought, why not have a thread where we can exchange great music?

The song is Lashuv Habaita by Yishai Ribo. The tune is catchy but what really gets me are the lyrics...I think the message in this song is very appropriate for alot of us here and the struggles we face.

EDIT: Apparently YouTube links don't work here. I guess that makes sense for an internet

I've uploaded the song as an attachment instead.

I'll try to add the lyrics to the post above.

Here's another one, Hanisayon Hazeh. Also very appropos and stirring. All his songs are beautiful and have meaning.

beautiful as well, shkoyach,btw i read that youve listened to 3 major speakers in emuna ,but youre still missing s/t,can i recommend Rabbi A. Millers ZTL tapes ,they are great as well as his sefarim are , especialy Rejoice O` Youth, Rabbi Miller not only clarified and proved the Emuna in a tangible way (now what?) , he also clarified a yids purpose in this world and what an enjoyable purpose it is , thank you again,hatzlacha!

currently into undertale. never played the game and possibly never will but it looks awesome. Music's great. I usually just tune into rpgamers radio. WARNING, there be women singing in some songs. Make sure you have good mute reflexes!!

cool, I've never played it either but it looks great.

I'm currently in middle of To The Moon, similar 8-bit retro art and music style

I just came across the song "One Day At A Time" by Shloime Dachs. I thought hey maybe this has something to do with recovery so I listened to it.

The song is so clearly laden with recovery that id be shocked if the composer wasn't a recovering addict.

listen to it and tell me if you agree?

(it's not an overly inspirational or too good of a song so don't get too excited though :/)

I think you're right, nice find. A lot of recovery catchphrases in there.

Agreed about the song itself tho. Not that great

I reccomend yosef karduners album Mesugal bteshuva it really resonates with me when my mind is on recovery with its soft powerful music the lyrics are concepts of emuna and avodas Hashem.
