

Funny Things Kids Said

Posted by ilovehashem247 - 03 Feb 2025 00:44

Transplanting post from a different thread - kids say hilarious things, let's share them with each other! I'll go first.

grade school son comes out of bath

Son: "I'm freezing!"

Me: So get dressed

Son: but I'm holding something, how can I get dressed if my hands are full?

Me: put your stuff on the floor and then get dressed.

Son: but how will I know where I left my stuff in the morning?

Me: put it in its place

Son: I don't know where to put it

Me: don't you have a box for all your stuff?

Son: yes, but i usually don't put anything there.

Me: So start putting your stuff there

Son: but since I do not usually put my stuff there I won't think to look there.

Me: so how do you usually find your stuff in the morning?

Son: I usually lose my stuff until someone finds it (usually me or his mommy stepping on it or throwing it out...)

Me: maybe start putting your stuff where it goes and then you will know where it is

Son: I think I'll just leave it under my pillow. That's where i leave my kippa.

Me: ok then. goodnight, love you.

6 y/o was pretending the recycling bin was a dump truck trailer, filled it with mud and told everyone to check out his huge dump

"it is the biggest dump ever, look at how huge it is!"

Most certainly a boy. You should be proud.

Has he been listening to any Trump Rallies recently?

Was talking to my 5 year old earlier about how the rain cycle works. He starting yapping away about how it rains really hard in Africa (random?) then looks up at me with his eyes open super wide and says "Aba, is Africa a real place?"

I told him in all seriousness "yes, it is."

Also hopped on the chinuch moment and told him that I know Africa is a real place because I have spoken to people who have been there. That is how we know the Torah is real too, because our parents' parents' parents' back many generations were at Har Sinai, and they told their kids about it for generations.

overheard:

6 y/o: "Maaaaa, [5 y/o] is saying bathroom words and pretending he speaking Spanish!"

I was shmuzing it up with my 5-yo son, trying to psych him up for the Seder. Along the way I asked him if I can steal the afikoman too. He said "No!" "Why not", replied TD?

"Because you're a grown up,"

" Excuse me, what makes you say I'm a grown up?"

" Because, you are a Totty!"

For those unfamiliar with Tzitzis Dude, he prides himself on still being a kid on the inside, so this conversation hit hard.

My English cousin was with us for Yom Tov. Seeing how handsome and sharp my son was looking, she offered him a compliment.

"You look very smart, Shmerel".

"I am", was the reply.

Not sure if this belongs here or on the grouchy thread but....

My two year old daughter is walking around all Yom tov (we moved into my in-laws and parents for the whole Yom tov) saying something in gibrish that sounds like she's saying the F word, it's hilarious, funny, nerdy, what not. Don't know what she means to say or not but it's driving me up the wall.

My friend was eating out somewhere for a Shabbos seudah. At one point, they were discussing something that "Zaidy" used to do.

Quite innocently, a young daughter pointed out "well, he can't do that anymore, because he's dead". The mother freaked out, of course. "You can't say that! That's not funny!!!"

the guys by the table, trying to be polite and laughing being their hands, thinking "yes, that was hilarious!"

cuddling with 3 y/o and i told him to say "alot alot" until I tell him to stop and that's how much I love him. he kept going for about 3 minutes till he got tired of it. I asked him where in his body he feels the love. He lifted my shirt, slowly stuck his finger deep in my belly button, and in the sweetest little voice said "here, Aba."

funny happenings with an almost-4-year-old older brother: Aba, little brother smushed a fig bar on the floor of the minivan. now he needs to pay for a car detailing

Me: 3 y/o, yes now you have to pay money to clean the car

3 y/o: crying but I'm just a kid, i have no money!

(forgot how literal kids are it was actually kind of sad but also funny)

this morning:

3 y/o: Aba I have sticks on my body just like you

Me: really? where?

3 y/o: like you!

Me: do you mean that you have a toothpick and cleaned your teeth?

3 y/o: NO! LIKE YOU ON YOUR BODY!!!!!!!!!!

Me: where on my body?

3 y/o: on your face

Me: you mean my beard?

3 y/o: yeah, the sticks on your face. I have it but just a little bit and also on my legs too just a little bit. but not so much on my face yet because I'm a kid.

(great to recognize that our bodies change over time)

My son decided a few days ago that he's able to communicate using hands gestures and slight exhales.

Tonight, as I was attempting to get him ready for bed, I told him "why don't you take your shoes off by the shoe rack and leave them there? That way, you'll know exactly where they are tomorrow morning" (which is a constant issue with him).

He responds with a bunch of fervent hand movements.

After a few seconds of him not doing what I told him (okay, fine. I zoned out for a bit, probably listening to a shiur&/or podcast) I just picked him up, brought him to the shoe rack, and started removing his shoes. He puts up a massive fit. "I TOLD you already, I'm sleeping in my shoes! Don't need to take them off!!!"...

My wife was having some hummus with pretzels today. The baby (somewhere above 1 year, who counts months anyway?) sees this, and starts demanding his own portion. My wife's like "okay, sure. As you wish".

L'maasah, the kid pounded.

We hold he probably thought it was a type of ice cream (#BusinessIdea???)

Warning: Spoiler!
