'someone' told me to post this:

Innovative: Rent an Apartment, Get Free Kugel

Thursday November 17, 2011 11:33 AM

Lakewood, NJ - With a tough economy and a challenging real estate and rental market, new ideas and innovations are constantly cropping up, as people look for an edge. Knowing that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, one homeowner in Lakewood, NJ, has turned to a good old reliable idea to attract a renter for his apartment: potato kugel.

In an ad (click here) seeking a renter for a three-bedroom apartment in the Chesterfield

Commons development in Lakewood, the homeowner states: "Free potato kugel upon signing!"

The ad does not state whether the kugel is of the homemade variety or if it originates from one of Lakewood's fine take-out stores or eateries, but we are sure that potential renters are lining up to sign their name on the dotted line for that highly coveted apartment. After all, who can say no to some free kugel?

Kugel can entice s/o to rent an apartment... But cholent builds a home.

ok how's this....

Ahem* Ladies and gentlemen.... I'd like to share with you one of the most pressing issues of today *MEANINGFUL PAUSE. When do we soak our beans? often too close to Shabbos to get the full effect. I recommend that this social crisis be given a shmAncy acronym name like project BEAN for Benefiting Everyone (but) ABOUT Nonsense.

It's a perfect acronym because the word but really doesn't fit, so you can tell it isn't real cuz it's not a perfect acronym... you know? ???

Also- *ahem *tie straightening I believe we need to talk about kids at risk and the meat. yes part of the reason why so many kids are off the D is because we are scrimping.... *slight moment of uncertainty *clear authoritative resolution... the meat. We need to see more juicy flkanken in the cholent and none of this using up the ends business. get a nice fat piece of meat and plop right in there. *uh huh. yup. that'll definitely have a good important affect.

and now for my next act... I mean NEXT POINT- We have to analyze the whole crock pot versus blech issue. too many families are suffering with blech cooked cholent that either comes out too cooked or spoils. I know. this is how our grandparents did it. there were no crock pots then. but if there is one thing I believe we stand for here at this convention it's progress and doing away with the antiquated ways of our forebearers. and it's high time everyone here goes to their local houseware dealer and get a frickin crock pot. after that please report back for a kumzitz with lipa in the main ballroom and a speech about chinuch. or something like that. also anyways the word blech is not so nice sounding to americans and it has teh osiyos belch. and you don want to belch after cholent.

thank you for coming and thank you for listening and thank you for letting me come to the convention for free. And thank you Hashem for everything and if I dont thank my wife she is gonna be hurt so thanks to my wife. And also theres a kid, I once stepped on his toe as I was getting off the bus in flatbush... i wanna say im sorry to that kid.... he was really nice! he just sort of bit his lip but i have stepped on his foot really hard- totally by accident! you know what i mean. i was getting off and he was.... ok forget it. any ways sory kid. i think your name was moishey zeltzman or something like that.

I also wanna thank the yated and hamodia for being here and writing this up. if you want i can email you teh exact text..... If anyone can tell me how to get back to detroit i would appreciate it. cuz i have no idea..... one minute! i forgot to thank my grandparents. they cmae here after the war.....

Precious BOT! One complaint. Oven cooked cholint is better than crockpot cholint. That's how true gedolim are made 8).
