Real commitment is a start

A gameplan is what it takes.

What's on the agenda?

Hit the ground running!

are you on the 90-day chart yet?

Do you have fences in place for when the next "lust attack" hits you?

Hatzlocho and a gute voch!

Hey there I'm with you on the scarediness,

You're ahead of me so I really shouldn't be talking (I'm clean for eleven days)!

Anyway, they keep stressing all over this site and in the handbooks:

"Take the 90 days "one day at a time". We can't eat or sleep today for tomorrow, and we can't stay sober for tomorrow either. One addict who is already sober for 20 years was wont to say, "Just for today I won't act-out, even if my backside falls off!" (and it never did :-)"

So let's hope our backsides don't fall off ;D !!!

Good luck to both of us!!

Just let go of the fear.

Acting out is not in your control.

You're an addict.

You are powerless over lust.

If you try to be in control, you will fail.

Admit that you are powerless, and let the RBS"O take control.

If you give Him control of the wheel, it is no longer your job to worry, and you don't need to fall apart.

The only time i face fear or feel afraid is when i look at the future. i must focus on today and today only, or this hour or this minute or this second only because it is only "now" that i can deal with anyway. i have found relief in not only turning my lust over to Hashem but also anger and fear. Though i am not an anger addict or fear addict just a lust addict it works just the same.

BTW, CONGRATULATIONS ON TWO WEEKS CLEAN!!!! AWESOME! FANTASTIC!

Remember how you got here, one second then one minute then one hour then one day then one week at a time. Live the present because that is all you have.

Hatzlacha in all things GOOD.
