(Hey! Put that mechitzah curtain down!)

Was I really the only tzaddik that cared about "vehaya machnecha kadosh", or was I the only messed up guy that was so easily triggered?

MT

Or perhaps both are true

Or perhaps neither

Or perhaps half of each

(Hey! Put that mechitzah curtain down!)

Reminds me of recently when I attended a chassidish shabbos sheva brochos. Some women/girls kept moving away the mechitza curtain to peek into the men. I was the only one that kept running over to yell at them until they would close the curtain. And I sat there wondering: Was I really the only tzaddik that cared about "vehaya machnecha kadosh", or was I the only messed up guy that was so easily triggered?

You made me laugh. I think many of us have been there.

I think to fully answer the question, you must read Harry's Son here

OH MY GOD. Zeidyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyy.

You REALLY do that?

I hope they were your daughters, or as "someone" always says "they were under three years old"...

And now for the next exciting revelation:

When was the hachtara?

Back in the late nineties I was trying to subtly convince my parents to get rid of the internet in our house because there is a lot a bad stuff that accessible on the web.(yes back then, in the days of dial up. The sound of a dial modem chchchchchchchchchchc ping chchchchchchchch.... ping)

Meanwhile I was already drowning in porn

I made some strides today BH.

I saw something that triggered me. I averted my gaze and thought to myself, "@#$*! Do you really mean that I will never be able to enjoy that taavah again"

Then I thought to myself, "No, not for the rest of my life, just today " then I felt (a little) better.

In general though, I feel like I am being pulled towards the lust from far away. It's as if something far away is trying to pull me (with force) towards my taavah.

So I called someone to share how I was feeling (actually two bcz after the first guy didn't pick up i spoke to the second guy and then the first guy called back). This was the first time that I have ever done that.

Day 36

and we all know what 37 is :-)

Then from 5,000 throats and more there rose a lusty yell;

It rumbled through the valley, it rattled in the dell;

It knocked upon the mountain and recoiled upon the flat,

For Casey, mighty Casey, was advancing to the bat.
