KUTGW!!!

There is nothing wrong with feeling happy for our accomplishments, on the contrary, relish in it!! We only have to be careful that we don't become complacent with our progress (which was probably my mistake).

The point of not gazing at women is a really important one. We do not only feed on porn and masturbation, that is our way of acting out, but there are plenty of ways where we internally give ourselves a little "boost" of lust, by looking and/or fantasizing without any external actions.

It is actually those things that keep our addiction alive and keep us from being sober even when we are "clean".

Progress, not perfection!! You are certainly making progress and that's what counts!!

KUTGW!! KOMT!!!!!!!!!!!!

I know that with me, i gotta worry about this, because the happier I am with my accomplishment and with relishin', the worse off i am; it needs to be God-related.

that bein' said, that's probably what was meant.

I wish i had some long term sobriety so that I would have the question of whether to relish it or not. I have no Frankfurter, no ketchup, no mustard no bun and surely no relish!

I fell and fell after 2 weeks of staying sober (following years of walking on dirt)

so Im picking myself up and Im setting something concrete.. im committing to taphsic method as provided below effective immediately up until my next fall or until after sukkas I will not use the internet for p..n or anything in that nature. If I fail at that Ill stop Using my home computer for everything and anything thats outside of strict business purpose or email.. until I placed a stronger and more comprehensive filter service.. in the event that after a fall I would still use the computer (before installing a better filter) for anything not mentioned above I'll consequence myself with 2k for tsduka.

i could modify all that to the stricter side but not to be more lenient..

Its sounds complicated but to me its straight fwd..

I fall.. I stop using computer for fun until filter.

I fail at that... I pay 2000

all this is while i remember my vouch

Welcome back! Sorry to hear of your falls but it's good that you're getting back up and taking concrete steps.

Just one comment though: if your filter could be better why wait till after another fall? Fix it now and a fall will be less likely.

You definitely can do it, and you have a good attitude too. I'm sure you'll be getting the "So what are you going to do differently this time?" barrage from people here, so I won't ask that. It goes without saying. I think one of the most important things to say as connected as possible, and post here a lot.

Mentally, what precipitated the fall (without too much graphic detail ;-) Were you stressed, or even over-optimistic about something?

Its been a while...

I was really browsing and staying in the dark for way too long!

But I'm starting anew,

Today is my second clean day.. I'm really striving and hoping that ill have the kochos to pull it off this time.. to the 90 day wall of honor.

lyh bli neder, ill moderately post how it goes with my struggle. If ill be able to stand tall for full 7 days, ill start a new thread, and call it home (to my new life)

off we go

keep on trucking (are we still using this slang here!!)
