

Yaakov's Ladder

Posted by Pidaini - 08 Mar 2013 17:33

Starting my log a little late, i'm BH holding by today, which is number 53 of all the todays, but Bein Hazmanim is coming and i need to keep in check, and might not have time for all the chatting that ussually helps me clear my mind (thanks guys!!).

i've been using AlexEliezers advice, that he gave me right when i first posted, of bulletproof Shemiras Einayim, or trying at least, and BH got to Today. but it's all changing now, it's not the same streets that i walk down every day, know exactly where to go so not to look, the dangerous places where i have to be careful etc.

now i'm entering the lions den, going to the airport, the airport itself, a few hours on the plane, etc. it's really scaring me!!

anyone have any ideas?

also been struggling with dreams, i know it shouldn't affect me, but it does, because it makes me realize that my mind isn't clean during the day, which leads to the next question how to keep my mind clean?

Wishing all you a Great Shabbos and it's Parshas Hachodesh so may we all be zoche to renew ourselves!!

Hello hello hello!!!

Oh is it good to be back!!

BH, I'm still clean!! Well, somewhat, just a little falling in the movie area. I flew back to the Hole Land yesterday and the plane was half empty. I got our family seats in the back where it was more empty and we could have more space to ourselves and all spread out.

My wife looked agitated so I asked her why, after all I was thrilled!! She said (as I was sitting in a row behind and there was no row available next to her row) "maybe you like sitting alone, but I don't"

BOOOOOOOOOOM!!!!!!

That was like OMG!!! It so defined me and my relationship with the world. I would love to just do my own thing, be on my own, etc. But she is BH healthy, normal (mostly, although she has a bit of an english accent) and enjoys being with other people, talking to other people, listening to other people!!!

It could have been fine, but then I started watching, first Godzilla, and then it continued with X-men. My wife came up to me in middle and asked me to stop because she was embarrassed of the other chassidish people who saw what I was doing. SO I moved further back where there was a group of missionaries and continued watching.

I ended up spending the whole flight watching, and completely forgot about Mincha!! Afterwards I felt that disconnect, that detachment from everything around me, it is horrible!! I had to finish the movie of course, so I did that today (while putting stan to sleep, so I have a good excuse) and watched it again...

Anyhow, if I want to enjoy life I need to jump back into it, it won't happen before that. It is uncomfortable, but I know that the path that I'm running through now will end up being much more uncomfortable.

Oh and besides for that, the trip was a breeze!! One flight at a time!! It's awesome!!!!

Thanks for letting me share and for listening!

I forgot to mention, there was something else that I did on the trip.

I couldn't resist, even though I was with my brother-in-law. I just had to buy it, he even started asking questions, but I hemmed and hawed my way though it. He wanted to know how I knew it was a kosher one and if he should buy it as well!!

I bought

Reminds me of a true story. A fellow GYE friend got engaged. I attended the vort, but I did not see any woodford there. Then the kallah's sister got engaged and I attended that vort (I happen to know the family). I went to the head-table to make a lechayim, and there I found a bottle of woodford! Wasn't sure what to make of it.

Strange world...

You know the family? You're the kallah's great aunt!

But here's my take on it, the kallah's side makes the vort. By his vort he wasn't involved in the planning, by the time her sister got engaged though, he was part of the kallah's side. See, simple as that.

1. Please be careful with my (and my GYE friend's) anonymity.
2. Yeah, the kallah's great (i.e. the other one), but I'm not the aunt (I'm somehow related to the aunt).

(Must have drunk too much of that woodford.)
