

laughingman tries to count to 90.....

Posted by laughingman - 14 Mar 2013 16:01

as of today all my posts are here as far as my own topics are concerned

i have had 2 falls but i am now a week into a new streak

i have had success in breaking some previously unbreakable habits not m habits ...thoses i have dealt with somewhat but even farther as a result of the rules that i follow through the 90 days and though i have slips about once in 2-3 days every day foward breaks that tooo down so that it becomes less frequentand eventually non-existent

i recently got the s3 and i have had soo far Thank G-d no desire to sttempt to use it for searching ****

i personnaly dont use software barriers for myself (for my kids i do of course)

i can break them too easy ...the only way out is personal honesty

as all of these things are for now personal actions and it is working ...hopefully it will continue though im sure the real war is coming breaking free one day at a time is just that but its funny that recently i have been soo busy that one day at a time can yield about 6 days if i let it ...since day 30 its been even easier to break free even more from old slippery slopes and freeze lust ful thoughts in there tracks

i also must say that for me playing a computer game helps immensely

i have some really good games with great graphics and they arent full of triggers (well there are potential ones but they are optional and i dont use them) and that helps let a trigger time pass

onward to day 50

I had passed day 50....

I was on my way i was breaking free...

But ii started slipping....dailynot m mind

Just looking at some thingsbut it was getting out of hand

So i pulled the emrgency brakes and called it a falland it has helped me learn to take complacency seriously soo that it accurs less..

Whatever helps me fight my way back out of the pit that me and some around me helped dig....in Him i trust to save me because i dont knwo how without Him laughingman:

1. how is your wife?
2. you give chizuk to us in your stringent outlook
3. that was a big move to count a slip as a fall (I know...each day seems like a week).
4. I noticed that the usual helpers on this site are not chiming in to help you; perhaps it is because you are not being specific with your problem, or your fences. [perhaps you did elsewhere, and perhaps you do not want; forgive me; I am only speculating...ultimately, you should only divulge what you feel comfortable with.]

chazak ubaruch!!

Just a word of caution. Sometimes, calling something a fall has the opposite effect. Well, I fell anyway, and I have to start my count over anyway... Sometimes, being too machmir is not good, especially for us.

Hatzlacha!

First the *news my wife is still ill ...has been for about five months nownot sure what it is though we have identified asthma as one problemthe other symptoms honestly are probably something really simple but over looked orsomething chronic and possibly pemanent

The good news is that while my fight is far from over or won my calling a fall is a good thing.....it seems myy only heel left is the looking and that is getting stopped at every turn....or at least enough not to outright fall soo far.....at every slip up i set up a new fense and for those who are thinking oh boy heres another nieve fenser guy who will never really be clear i say that when i started i was seeing everything and only then counting a fall and now i count even non full *as a fallinhave learned that not giving myself slack has the effect of making it seem like imclimbing 90 degrees but this way its less and it has been working.....

wow! you are one heck of a hero! reading through your posts (particularly the last one) has given me chizzuk! just wanna point out two things:

1) I cant imagine what you're going through at home, but with all this your main concern is staying clean; this is the akeida where yitzchak's only concern about being a korbon olah was that he should be tied so that he doesn't move. But i wanted to point out that more important than anything, even than staying clean u might say(!) is simcha, being happy. more than getting you to fall, the yetzer horah's ultimate goal is to get you down, depressed. if you can beat that, then your half way there! and the key to getting there is believing with a full heart that Hashem isn't out to get you- HE LOVES YOU!! you are precious to Him more than anything in the world, like a father to his son.

2)I just read through pretty much this whole thread now, and I think you should. you can see your whole journey, exactly how you have grown and progressed since you started it, with 50 days clean, something that at the moment i only dream of!

since joining GYE recently, i still fall. whats the difference (besides for the actual fact that the falls are getting farther apart)? before i was falling because it was part of a viscous cycle of my bad habit. now if i ch'v fall, i look at how many times i slaughtered the y'h by saying 'no!' before i fell, weakening him, and i know that next time i will amend things and succeed beyond my wildest dreams! (to quote someone i know).

the point is you grow into a far stronger person from each fall. it just depends on how you pick yourself up afterwards. that's the make it or break it.

(a tip with staying clean is to tell yourself that the past and future are only for Hashem, there is nothing i can do about that. this present moment however, i am going to stay clean. i may fall in five minutes- that i cant control, but right now with Hashem's help i can stay clean this moment, and that is something which will be with me forever.)

Hatzlocha rabboh, and as they say here at GYE: KOT KOMT!!

you're an inspiration!

and be besimcha!!! :-) :-)

To those who feel inspired from this ...thank you frankly if my life has positively effected one person then it is worth it

On an earlier note the trouble is 1: my wife seems to have some kind of chronic illness possibly severe stress related....

Oh and the transmission to my car is shot...or maybe the fluid in there just needs change....i could still be spared larger expense

Still going stroong i think.....havent even looked at real peoplo soo much as i walk ...much less looked online and yahoo d
