

The chronicles of inastruggle

Posted by inastruggle - 07 Apr 2013 05:50

I'm going to reintroduce myself for the record, and for those of you who haven't heard my story yet. I've been m for as long I can remember, my earliest memory of it was when I was in first grade I wasn't molested or anything b'h, I discovered it on my own. I obviously had no clue that it was assur (though I do remember thinking that something wasn't so kosher about it), and I didn't connect it to s*x until I was about 13, it just felt good so I did it. In eighth grade I found out about s*x and connected the two. It was also around that time when I discovered p. Eventually I also found out it was assur (through an article on wikipedia, which leaves a bit to be desired in the chinuch area).

I did try stopping but I wasn't too committed since I didn't know if it was really assur or not, since I never heard any rebbe speak about it openly, if I remember correctly my eighth grade rebbe mumbled something about shmiras habris which I don't think anyone understood, and even I wasn't sure if he was talking about what I was doing. Anyway when I got to mesivta the rebbeim did mention it and I knew it was assur but by that time it was already naaseh lo k'heter for long time already.

I knew that I should speak to a rebbe about it but I was too embarrassed. I did speak to one rebbe without telling him what the problem was (I think he guessed it) and he told me to try just to stop it for a short amount of time and then I could try for longer (a.k.a. baby steps) but that didn't really either help too much. Somewhere around twelfth grade I stopped m without p because it wasn't too hard to do and to be completely honest it was also getting a little boring.

I'm not sure how long ago I heard about gye but I think I read about it in the mishpacha and that motzei shabbos I checked it out, all I saw were some articles I read some and it didn't help at all.

I should add that like most unmarried people (I think) I thought that once I get married it would just go away so I was rationalizing that anyway it isn't a permanent problem and I'm koruv l'oness because I started so young etc. which I think was the reason I wasn't taking it too seriously.

So I continued to watch p and m pretty much whenever I was home until about three months ago when I was walking to yeshiva and I was listening to a shiur about the dangers of the internet and to do teshuva even if you fell, (I put it up in the kosher isle if anyone is interested) and something snapped and i realized that I HAVE TO STOP THIS NONSENSE, since the last time i was on gye i had read about it a few more times and saw some advertisements for it so i decided that i'm going to have to go on gye another time and become a member and (i don't remember this for sure but i think the second part was there) if it doesn't work then i'm going to talk to my rebbe about it.

When i went on gye it was completely different than before and i joined up and registered on the 90 day chart right away and didn't fall for about two weeks then i did about a month and now i'm 33 days clean which is my longest since joining.

in my next post iy'h i'm going to talk some more about what my situation is, and what i think my problem is, and how i'm dealing with it

So tonight at the stroke of twelve will Be"h be 90 days clean!!

For me If memory serves me correctly, this is the first time since childhood that this has happened.

When I woke up on shabbos, Hashem sent me a little message to (I think) remind me that this is never going to be over until the day I die.I dreamt some explicit pictures (after thinking "wait I can't think this") and woke up right when the kerl started.

It's interesting since I can maybe remember having kerl three times and then it happened today on day 90.

anyway, gonna post midnight.

I was going to write a serious letter with thank yous but how about i leave that for later... in the meantime:

LET'S PARTY

BRING OUT THE TCHOLENT AND THE CHOLINT AND THE CHOLENT

AND THE WOODFORD

EVERYONES INVITED (besides khaleed)

in this spirit i'd like to ask a very personal request.

if there is anyone besides the cheaters up there who would like to wish me a mazel tov, then please include a joke so that this thread doesn't become too mushy and make me cry.

even chicken vs. road jokes will be accepted.

THANK YOU ALL

Why did the chicken cross the road?

To read the Yated. You get it?

No, I get the Hamodia.

Why was the chicken happy it crossed the road?

Cause it went to get The Forward.

So why was it happy?

Cause it became roadkill on the way.

: NO POLITICAL JOKES ON THIS THREAD

: unless their funny.... (which this wasn't, sorry inna)

Mazel Tov!

Why did the chicken cross the road?

Chickens don't have brains to speak of, I think the whole decision happened spontaneously

Mazel Tov!!!!!!!!!!!!

Oh, I have to do a joke now? I'm not very good at that. So I could leave it, but since you asked so nicely I guess I really have to...

Why did the dolphin cross the road?

To get to the other tide!

(Get it? Get it? No? Oh, whatever...)

Mazel Tov Inna.

I have nothing against mushiness and seriousness. [which is a word in the UK, see (in the old times TZ would put a link) here]

I admire your singlemindedness in achieving your goals, you are a true inspiration to myself and to all frum yidden.
