welcome and in the beginning certainly, focus on the moment, not 90

9th day is today. Thank you guys for your support so much! Yesterday's evening was tough, had some frivolous talk with a girl. But didn't acted out or write somebody a message, so I'm still on my days counting.

Peace!

Joke, well actually I am alone at the comp and would like to act out. But to be honest (this a must in this fight I guess), your few words give me strength. When you just wrote

Today's is day 1, feeling good.
Vau looking great, it counts double if you do it with a smile it really felt good. I mean the feeling of starting, when all is possible. Well on my days 1 I still felt kind of down from the last fall, but something kept me going. You know!? The feeling, that I could still do something good for someone. I could still help an old lady across the street (that really happened after one fall). And that feeling is so special and so real.

Well I don't know if you did it with a smile, but you sure did give me a smile through your writting.

So all the best to You Chaver!

Honestly I had a few slips yesterday, but I didn't watch any p*, I did stumble upon half nudes, because I was reading the news (my mouse just went over a title and there she was). But I also typed in shmutz only to delete it again and closing the page.

Yesterday I watched Ford's Stagecoach till 2 am and then turned off my comp and went to bed. Vau I felt so good after that.

But this morning I fell asleep and was late 1 hour (for it just means I have to work 1 hour longer) and my wife was angry. Then I come home late. So I blew it. I am taking things too easy.

It is ok that I want to educate myself, but not on the account of other responsibilities. Aj, my bad.

I am so sorry about that.

I hope I can manage to be more responsible today. Darn...

KOT!!

I'm a week behind you (today is day 2 for me). Seeing the progress of someone a little ahead of me is very motivating.

KUTGW! Your doing awesome!
