

My 90-Day Journey

Posted by TalmidChaim - 06 May 2014 16:45

Hey Everyone,

Thanks, already, for the outpouring of support and motivation! I'm five days into this haul, and still very motivated.

My first thoughts (read: anxieties) moving forward, however, are related to what happens when this initial dopamine rush of optimism fades, as rushes are wont to do. We all know, especially as men with addictive and obsessive personalities, that there's a biochemical fix associated with new and exciting things. The GYE journey, for me, now, is new and exciting. But what happens after ten days, twenty days, B"H...90 days? I'm beginning to see the wisdom in the old adage, one day at a time. But I'm also eager to benefit from the erudition of the veteran (and freshman) tzadikim here on GYE.

Thank you so much!

Also, think of all the experience you've had where you thought that it eas too much and you got it done.

You did it then and you will do it again.

Thanks for all the chizuk and advice, guys! I'm still stressed, but hanging in there. It makes me feel better knowing I have such caring friends here.

You're better than me!!

I didn't even make it that far the past two days!

I'm done with most of my work and a lot less stressed out. I want to start reading more of the Big Book now and working on do a lot of the tangible self work that the program requires.

Thanks, Serenity. There's a very pristine, unopened Big Book hiding in my desk drawer. A lot of good it's doing me there.

I succeeded in weathering some tough temptation, so I'm feeling good. There's a lot to be said about just mentally giving in to the fact that you want to act out, admitting it yourself and letting go of the need to fight it.
