I already woke up this morning with the YH in my head, but I managed to brush it off and go

Notice, btw, that you got 5 "Thank You"s (at the time that I a posting this) for such a small post, I think that should show that people are quite interested in your experience, after all, you have been here for 9 months already!!

Seems about 14 or so now.

I am physically drained and emotionally spent.

Something is hidden for guests. Please log in or register to see it.

The last four days, I have been fighting and white knuckling till my last ounce of energy.

At several times, the only thing that saved me was reaching out and sharing the very embarrassing details of what I was planning to do just then.

Last night, I threw in the towel, but I had Divine intervention and was prevented from carrying out my plans. I feel like the last few days were 90 in of themselves. But they weren't. They were four days. Four very hard days.

They all just feel like imaginary numbers anyway...

Does it ever let up?

i have experienced some "let-up" in the past; not in the near past, however.

BIGMOISH

Last night, I threw in the towel, but I had Divine intervention and was prevented from carrying out my plans

Why did you restart your chart if "Divine intervention" stopped you from acting out?

This is my 400th post, and I am back on day 1. Did I accomplish anything in these past months? Definitely. It's just taking a while to figure out everything that doesn't work, that's all.
