

Was clean for 4 weeks

Posted by StartingOver - 19 Sep 2014 05:16

I started dating a new woman and I was clean for four weeks. Didn't look at porn once (some provocative pictures) and barely touched myself. I screwed up last last two days. I looked.

The woman I am dating told me that she broke up with a guy who admitted he had a porn addiction.

I thought I was over this.

Not sure what to do right now...

Welcome back.

Sorry to hear about that.

Can you remind us what you were doin' for recovery?

What was workin'?

What wasn't?

Either way, today is a new day and you know that you can do the right thing for right now, and that's all that our responsibility is.

So head up and back on da truck!

I failed completely last night. Totally not worth it.

To fall, or to recover?

either way, I can relate.

Have had both of those feelings.

Let us know your thoughts please.

I was alone, bored and in need of great stimulation or an escape. I took the easy fix rather than finding something productive to do.

Quick question: what are you doing in terms of reaching out?

Well basically one of the reasons I've been clean is because I have had what to do on Sundays. Sunday's are dangerous for me because I'm often alone. Even if I do a lot of things, there is a lot of dead time. I didn't reach out this time because I was in such need of stimulation I welcomed looking at porn this time. I guess I needed an escape.

So today I was walking around midtown Manhattan and saw so many beautiful girls I actually questioned why I am frum today. and I feel bad for the woman I am dating because she is tzinus and can't compete with what I was seeing today.

Did you follow cordy's advice: "Whats your next move?"

What are you doing for recovery? Or are you just fighting the Yetzer?
