

90 days to the new year. please help and join me

Posted by Arongreen - 15 Jun 2015 21:13

I did it again and again but i feel like a lot of people begging for help after falling many time.

Im now on the way to the 90 days and would like to ask anyone that has done it and can please help me be on the same page as him and people that didn't do it if they can please join me so we can work together

A happy year is coming for all of us and bezchus Guarding our eyes we will have a good year

I was chating with someone on GYE and told him about my 90 days to the new year

so he told me forget about having a good year

Don't you just want to have a good day like today maybe?

yes i do

And im sure you all feel like me when you have a clean day the day is much calmer

so please help me

Welcome Aron Green;

It is an honor to have you here with us reminding us that we need to prepare and get ready for Rosh hashana.

take it one day at a time. Keep us posted with your ups and downs. As you said have a GOOD DAY, and also a good year for this year and the coming years.

Hatzlacha

Welcome, Aron!

In case you (or anyone else) has not yet read this week's Parsha e-mail from Rabbi Twerski, it contains a very powerful message for all of us (Kedarko baKodesh).

Shelach: Believe that you CAN

By Rabbi Dr. Avraham Twerski

There were two episodes of spies sent to Canaan. Those sent by Moses resulted in a disaster from which we still suffer thousands of years later, whereas those sent by Joshua resulted in triumph. Why the radical difference?

Hashem had promised the Israelites the conquest of Canaan, but they lacked the trust and faith in Hashem. They sent the spies to see whether they were indeed capable of conquering the land. Joshua's spies had no such doubt. They were only interested in what is the best method to achieve this.

This is a message for all time. If you question whether or not you can achieve your goal, there will be many doubts, and you may decide that you cannot do it. If you are determined that you will do it, but are just looking for the most efficient way, you will succeed.

In addition, we cannot afford to think whether or not we can recover. There is no option. If we are determined that we will recover, and we are looking for the best way to do so, we will succeed.

Arongreen - you are on solid ground

Keep up the good work- KUTGW

Also always keep in mind Kedusha's post - Failure is simply not an option, the only question we ask is: Which approach will work best for me?
