I was able to past the second day . it was So dangerous , I made some mistake like staying up too late , Not Thinking about the fact that little temptations give space to bigger ones and checking unnecessary stuff on internet . though I was in my bed I kept checking those stuff with my phone till it got dangerous and it was hard to stop then , I didn't think I will pause and throw my phone to other side of room to stop myself , It doesn't happen when you are on edge right ? I think I was helped .

Still Clean , Thanks .

Staying up late can be a huge mistake.

It's great that you know this.

Keep up the good work.

Keep on posting.

Thanks , Due to this addiction I have a hard time sleeping , I'm do some intense martial arts training in a academy on odd days of the week , still struggling .

Day third done , I went out with my friends , created some memories , stayed away from loneliness .

It's strange , now that I am posting here I don't want to ruin my streak and topic I have in this forum ,It's like if I give in I will lose it !

I'm a big fan of exercise in general and I think there's a great benefit we can get out of it in our struggle as well.

Ruining your streak is a good motivator at the beginning. At some point it gets old though. I have two reccomendations for you.

2) Browse the site and forum and read up about other tools, connect with guys here, and learn the attitudes that so many of us find helpful.

KOP and KUTGW!

It's strange when I was at 3rd day 192 were ahead of me [if I am remembering okay] , Now after 8 days clean 142 are ahead of me , It shows a few had a fall and mostly succeed , I'm thinking about the day I will be ahead of everyone and 142 people have reached 90 day.

thanks for the advice , and yeah I think after a few weeks streak isn't going to be the top motivation. so I better find greater reasons.

It's been 17 days now that I have not committed this great sin (misusing my body & mind and leading my life to a wrong path).

In a materialism view , I have to say if there are a ton of reason we can write why we should not do this , losing energy needed for the day , getting angry easier , feeling hopeless , not being able to enjoy the daily life as one can and and and It's about being logical right? seeing the far future instead of and hour of horny (disrespectful) enjoyment !

Thanks to religion thoughts & ways it's easier to stop the temptation knowing there is more prize in stopping rather than giving in to the momentary pleasure . The more we are close to Him the less you want something someone or some of our actions , create distance in between .

I have to say if I have been able to stay right for these last weeks it's absolutely and undoubtedly thanks to God's great kindness , protection and blessings .

I simply hope that I can be someone deserving the blessings, and I'm afraid of losing them too.

at the end, you have my blessing in your try and fail path to your Ultimate win ,which, believe that you will get there .

Keep up the good work.

Do you feel like you need anything else to stay clean or is this fine?

It should be getting easier for the most part not harder.

I think my daily prayers are keeping my spirits , and I'm on fortifyprogram.org schedule and it helps really much clearing things out .

yeah it's gotten easier since day 10-14 I usually fall somewhere there , this might sound cheezy but it really has been thanks to god that I've reached this far , The calmness I get from the prays , the relaxation .

Its day 81 , Im clean but I dont see it like I've done something great , Im still easily bored , worrisome . I though me not having motivation was about this sin , Looks like I have other things to look into . to be honest thanks to god , and my hard team-style martial arts class I've gone , It was an easy road (or maybe I hate masterb.... so much , cause Last time I got on edge I remember I got super angry I didnt do it :D) .

Okay now that Im writing here , Im actually feeling better , Its because I know good people are here who read it . anyway I think there is more wrong in my life than this addiction , So Im gonna try find them and fix them too . ofc I did NOT watch any movies having any sexual interaction or if I did I fast forwarded that part I really guarded my eyes . I just wanted to say losing this addiction is why we are here , but we better remember there maybe other problems which just
