I will make it b'e"h Posted by MayanHamisgaber - 19 Dec 2016 23:17
Just started my 90 days journey (hopefully indefinitely) a little nervous as for years i have had very long stretches with feeling nothing and then WHAM massive fall which would then spiral out of control until someone found out. But now i have gye and everyone here who are so

At work it's good for me to have a little bit of stress. A little bit of pressure is a good motivator for action. Too much stress inhibits action.

Hey! Was just wondering where you've been; I feel like your presence has been missed.

Thank you. I appreciate that. Fortunately, life has caught up big time and I have a lot of responsibilities. I have a full-time job (9:30 - 5:15) and I'm also taking summer classes. I don't have much time for anything else. Even my meeting attendance has gone down, which is ok for me. I should still go to at least 4 a week. I'm doing very well though. I love the new job and there's a lot of potential for growth. I can't wait to graduate and focus primarily on that. But it does look like GYE is going to play less of a role in my life, and it may be like that going forward.

GYE should have a graduation day - you deserve it

When I originally joined GYE, I came to the site for help. And thank God I got it. GYE got me to SA. But it's been a while since I've used this site to help myself. I am on GYE for one sole purpose: To carry the message and helps others. There happens to be some really great people on the site that I've been in contact for a while, and there are definitely posts that I enjoy reading and have helped me. But that's just icing on the cake. I still try to help people, and many people have reached out to me over the years of being on the site. But life is telling me that I need to devote my time elsewhere and I'm seeing a natural change that I'm not on as much. I really only read posts if I know the person who is posting and if I want to hear what they have to say. I have a lot of gratitude to GYE, and I'm not saying goodbye, but it looks like I'm going to be spending less time on the site. Honestly, I can only see myself being here for the near future. I don't think I'm going to be like Cords or Gev who have been around for longer than I have. But all will happen how it's supposed to happen and when it's supposed to happen. And there's nothing I can do to change that.

As we say in yeshivish Shlomo, you're saying very good. I think it's wonderful and appropriate to have less time for GYE when you're doing well.

Thank you.
I never left and I'm not back (if that ain't a cordianism, I don't know what is).

Man I am feeling down and uncomfortable here
Why because recently there has been an uproar on the forum that to me seems a little out of hand. Maybe I am wrong and not thinking straight
This is a recurring thing in my life that I have a different view from others and it is not like the others are stupid kids but rather mature older people
