

The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 19 Feb 2017 04:23

---

In Short I had issues for about 5 years. When I started dating I stopped, and I was clean for a few years. Well it's come to the point where I gave to start my own thread. In the last half a year everything has been coming back, and I don't think I need to enumerate here on this forum, everybody knows what its like, you struggle you fall you fell terrible yada yada yada. Just goes to show once an addict always an addict.

Anyway that's not the point. The point is that coming here and reading the forums has opened up great insight about myself, particularly reading some of Dov's long posts. So I will give you some background, and hopefully you will all help

I feel like I'm in a place right now where if I wanted to stop myself I can ( and I do much of the time). The problem is I know what will stop me and I choose not to use those tools? I guess in general that's the problem, it boils down to how much do we really not want to do it. Do we not want to do it just because it makes you feel terrible afterwards/don't like the consequences. If that is the case I think we are doomed to fail, but unfortunately that is where I feel I am right now:cry: As dov put it best in the following quote

Warning: Spoiler!

Anyway I know it was a long rant (for me), I guess the question how do you open yourself up and truly change the way you think? Especially when it's not a lack of knowledge but a change of perspective?

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Shlomo24 - 24 Jun 2017 00:50

---

For me, there's a fine line between acceptance and excusing myself. Sometimes I might cross that line, but that's ok too. If I'm dealing with something and I know that I don't have the willingness or capabilities to change it, then I will not try to change it. I can't force myself to be willing or make myself able to change. It has to come naturally. But I've definitely used unwillingness as an excuse. It usually doesn't last long though, as I live a life of rigorous honesty and sooner or later I'm going to realize that I'm not being honest with myself.

Also, getting to this place happened "naturally" (by working a good program). I'm in good recovery and I got here eventually. I definitely wasn't here in the past. I started praying for acceptance every night a couple of months ago and God decided to let it happen.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Hakolhevel - 27 Jun 2017 02:50

---

Hakolhevel wrote on 23 Jun 2017 04:32:

I still believe what I wrote. In the long run, just having a cost benefit analysis will not work. So have I come to an answer? I think so

I think it is realizing that acting out, does not just have all these bad things but it is literally death (and insanity)!

In other words, I don't choose not to act out because I have a big business deal tomorrow and I know Hashem can make that deal go bad, or because I feel guilty being with my wife afterwards... that all doesn't help in the long run, lust/porn/masturbation is just too powerful it will eventually overtake me. It's too sweet/fun and exciting.

What drives my will to change and not act out in the long run (ODAAT) is the realization that it is a matter of life and death. If I give in to lust, I'm not just living a lesser quality life, rather I'm not living life!!!! and that is too steep a price to pay!

Just wanted to clarify, I'm not saying it doesn't work, rather it doesn't work for me... Hope I didn't come off too harsh

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Shteeble - 27 Jun 2017 12:58

---

Hakolhevel wrote on 27 Jun 2017 02:50:

What drives my will to change and not act out in the long run is the realization that it is a matter of life and death. If I give in to lust, I'm not just living a lesser quality life, rather I'm not living life!!!!

Can you elaborate on this concept?

Please explain how you are not living life when you act out.

Thanks.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 02 Jul 2017 02:44

---

Shteeble wrote on 27 Jun 2017 12:58:

Hakolhevel wrote on 27 Jun 2017 02:50:

What drives my will to change and not act out in the long run is the realization that it is a matter of life and death. If I give in to lust, I'm not just living a lesser quality life, rather I'm not living life!!!!

Can you elaborate on this concept?

Please explain how you are not living life when you act out.

Thanks.

Anyway in response, have you ever heard the statement "master of all trades jack of none" that's what it's like when i act out, I am obviously not living my real life, and I am not engaged in it either, constantly thinking about my next fix. Or spending my time fighting my next fix

And I am also not living my virtual life, it's all @ 3 am when my wife is deep asleep.

Living a double life in my books is death. It has nothing to do with porn/masturbation being a sin, it has to do with the double life. Unlike other sins where I slip up, they are not a double life, they are to be expected and more importantly not connected to a whole load of lying.

So again in conclusion, what drives me to change is not the cost benefit analysis (it doesn't feel good anyway... I feel guilty afterwards) it's reminding myself that I'm not living life when I act out.

Makes sense? Relate?

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Shteeble - 02 Jul 2017 04:50

---

Hakolhevel wrote on 02 Jul 2017 02:44:

Shteeble wrote on 27 Jun 2017 12:58:

Hakolhevel wrote on 27 Jun 2017 02:50:

What drives my will to change and not act out in the long run is the realization that it is a matter of life and death. If I give in to lust, I'm not just living a lesser quality life, rather I'm not living life!!!!

Can you elaborate on this concept?

Please explain how you are not living life when you act out.

Thanks.

Anyway in response, have you ever heard the statement "master of all trades jack of none" that's what it's like when i act out, I am obviously not living my real life, and I am not engaged in it either, constantly thinking about my next fix. Or spending my time fighting my next fix

And I am also not living my virtual life, it's all @ 3 am when my wife is deep asleep.
Great question Shteeble, and good to see you here again. Hope to see you more often

Living a double life in my books is death. It has nothing to do with porn/masturbation being a sin, it has to do with the double life. unlike other sins where I slip up, they are not a double life, they are to be expected and more importantly not connected to a whole load of lying.

So again in conclusion, what drives me to change is not the cost benefit analysis (it doesn't feel good anyway... I feel guilty afterwards) it's reminding myself that I'm not living life when I act out.

Makes sense? Relate?

Makes sense.

I don't relate.

But it makes sense.

well...

actually, I don't think I understand it.

I believe you 100% that this is how you experience it but I don't get it.

Maybe it's different for different people.

?Or maybe I'm just missing something.

For me, it's all about the sin.

And any sin, in my book, would seem like a double life...

loshon hara, talking during davening, stealing, eating on yom kippur and pretty much any aveiroh I can think of...

So what specifically about THIS make it a double life, where it's not about the aveiroh, but rather about the death of living a double life?

Again, I believe you. I'm just trying to learn from you.

Thanks. And thanks for the kind words too.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 04 Jul 2017 01:13

---

If everyone around me were angels and I would be doing those sins you mentioned you might be correct, however I live in this world with imperfect human beings.

So in the world I live I don't hide the fact that I have spoken loshon hara, or if I talk during davening. Most importantly I don't say lie upon lie to cover over what I am doing.

Your correct if it wasn't a sin it would not be a double life because everyone would be doing it and there would be no problem with it, or even if I was the only one doing it and there was no problem with it, I would not be leading a double life.

I guess what I'm getting at is that the double life is the killer, it happens to be that because it's a sin that is why it's a double life for me. But it being a sin is not what's stopping me from continuing. it's the double life which = death.

Now you might ask if it's just the double life that bothers me what stops me from indulging just a little like I do by other sins. The answer is because this is different, here I cannot just indulge a little, the moment I let my gaurd down and take a peak at a revealing photo, I will spiral totally out of control and be a slave to my lust.

As an aside, even lusting after my wife which is allowed, I can't handle, because I can't just lust after my wife, although I will admit it won't as quikly spill over to other lust.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Hakolhevel - 05 Jul 2017 18:57

---

Just to clarify. Any type of reason don't help during an actual lust attack. That is just what drives me to do the right things.

What it's required is surrender - and a few tricks up your sleeve don't hurt.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by dms1234 - 06 Jul 2017 16:41

---

Just to be clear what do you mean by tricks?

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 07 Jul 2017 01:21

---

I call them tricks, you may call them tips. you will find loads of them.

Everyone finds what works for them, it may be leaving your phone out of your bedroom at night to avoid confrontation with temptation, it may be (and is probably the best) calling a friend/wife/random stranger and the list goes on.

My experience was that if you work your recovery the need for tricks become less as time goes on.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by dms1234 - 07 Jul 2017 03:30

---

Any trick that involves my will, like say, leave a shiur on when i am going to sleep so that i will be distracted, doesnt work for me. I am powerless. I need God's help. There are many recovery tools that i need but they dont exactly revolve around removing the temptation. For example: doing inventories or meditating or calling my sponsor.

When i feel that i am lusting definitely getting it out into the light helps and also i am being honest so that does cool the temptation and lust but unless i figure out what exactly is wrong: fear, anger, another lust is waiting right around the corner.

Tricks sound to me like i am using my will. I am an addict. My will doesnt help. Maybe you or others tricks work. That could be all you need, i need a whole emotional, spiritual upheaval to help me recover.

When i work my program, i do not get tempted. Its a nes, an incredible miracle.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 10 Jul 2017 18:33

---

Do not stop at go. do not collect 200. keep on trucking one mile at a time.

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by Hakolhevel - 14 Jul 2017 01:57

---

For those who don't know it don't go looking it up. But I take it the song "tomorrow" would kinda be there antithesis of gye thinking.

I was thinking if it today as I am going thru a stressful time right now ( which may have caused my fall) and I find myself thinking of the song in which the message is tomorrow will be better.

But I think that we have to learn to live with the life we have today, despite it's problems and not just say, "well there is always tomorrow that will be brighter and better..."

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)

Posted by TzedekChaim - 17 Jul 2017 02:44

---

So true. (today, this moment, is really all that we got)

"Regret is living in the past, anxiety is living in the future. Serenity is living in the present."
(emphasis on "living" )

Hatzlacha Rabba!! Take it One DAY at a time!!

=====
=====

Re: The Road To Being Honest With Myself (and others:)
Posted by Hakolhevel - 18 Jul 2017 22:37

---

I was listening to a recorded dov call this morning and he mentioned in passing the difference between selfish and self absorbed.

I had never thought of it that way, but it made me realize how self absorbed I am. Anyone know of another recording/post where dov or anyone else delves deeper into the subject?

=====
=====