Because He told you not to do that- ?? ?????? ?????? ?????? ??????. Do not stray after your heart and after your eyes – the commentaries and the Gemara and Halacha all say that one cannot look at pretty women in order to derive pleasure.

We often think that it's rather unkind of God to do that- but the truth is that when one is busy being lustful and steering at all sorts of women it is much harder for them to stay connected and loving to their own spouse, and it is hard for them to be spiritual, focused, and present.

so then why did have present that in front of our faces all the time??

it doesnt make sense why He'd do that. its like having a nice ocean or sunset always in front of your face.

For me, not making sense of a problem I have is not always the pathway to a solution to that problem. I have no idea why G-d created beautiful women that are available for me to look at. I just know that if I focus on "just looking" at all the women I pass in the grocery store creates a problem for me. Consistently focusing on how beautiful (or not) women I see in daily life quickly becomes a trigger that leads to a problem that disconnects me from G-d, my spouse, my daughter, my granddaughter and grandson, and, well, just about everyone in my world. It's not a total disconnect, but the diminishing love that turns to lust quickly makes me, quite literally, sick. If I act out, it takes at least a week, often more, to recover. I physically, mentally, and spiritually am "hungover" and certainly not nearly as available to others until I fully recover.

So, after a week of hell, it doesn't matter why G-d makes those beautiful women available for my view, what does matter is my always focusing on women, period. There are worlds of other people, places, and things I can focus on that does not lead me to "act out." My focus should be in that direction rather than on why I can or cannot look at beautiful women.

I'm not sure if this helps, but sharing this with you helps me at this moment to "guard my eyes."

Have you ever lusted over a nice ocean or sunset. Spent hours uncontrollably viewing ocean scenes or sunsets and just couldn't get away from the computer? Don't fool yourself, we look at women in a different way. Even attractive women who are tzniuisly dressed.

We want a heter to look at a woman for any reason in order to draw us in too look at her for more devious reasons

So what do you think? That we're supposed to look? Maybe He made them so all the people who have relationships with them should be really happy. Who knows and who cares?

I totally agree

I cannot resist them.

Completely powerless.

And thats why I am learning to surrender them.

OGAAT (one girl at a time)

The problem isnt them or God for making them all beautiful, the problem is in MY attitude. I objectify women as my sex object. If i looked at them as human beings not as toys that i can fantasize about and then masturbate to then I wouldnt get triggered by all of them. The problem is my lust. The problem is me. If i asked myself how i can be of maximum service to them and realize they are all God's children, just like i am and then i wouldn't lust over them and treat them the way they are supposed to be.

The problem is that my problem isnt just lust. Its fear and resentment all of these character defects. So before i can really see them as real people, i need to work on all that junk.

We, that are suffering and suffered from lust we need first and foremost to look for the solutions to our problem.

as for your philosophical question I believe the gemara states the posuk וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה לַאֲשֵׁר וְלַבְּנוֹתָיִם וְלָאֲשֵׁר וְלַבְּנוֹתָיִם and says that it refers to וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה לַאֲשֵׁר וְלַבְּנוֹתָיִם meaning that g-d set up his world that we should be attracted to women and through that have children and their would be a continuation to the existence of the universe, b/c logically says the gemara a man shouldn't be attracted to a וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה לַאֲשֵׁר וְלַבְּנוֹתָיִם .

in other words the reason why they were created beautiful is for us to be attracted to our wives this that we use this tool of being attracted to others to is our defect (which can harm the way we'll view our wives as well).

Very well said, the discussion here was why did hashem create women (???) beautiful, not what's their purpose of creation.

There is more than one answer. Rabbi Avigdor Miller was known to say that if food was not enjoyable and fill a physical desire then people would forget to eat and many would die.

If women would not be attractive and relations not desirous then people many would simply not procreate.

Having said that, such philosophical discussions tend to lead us off our main focus.

As well, I know with me, my lust is so strong and my -yetzer hara or psychee or tendency or whatever you call it - looks for any seemingly kosher way to discuss women and their physical attributes to somehow keep me thinking about them.

I have struggled in the past by checking out news bits that seem so innocent but in reality were really a lure to get me started on the forbidden. The bits had to do with women's issues that i felt I had to know to be current on the news.

?Balony my friend, I was simply a desperado groping for even a smidgen of the topic so it could hopefully/eventually lead to more dirt.

Honestly now, could this be a reason for you having this discussion? Not so different than the kid who waits for the girl topics in the gemarah or halacha.
