responding to michael94, philosophically then hashem shld design the world in a way that we are only attracted to our wives

Philosophy isn't my line of action so much

Off the topic, LA did you find a SA meeting in NY

I get your frustration. Emotionally its hard, but philosophically, do we really have a tieyna?

Let's break it down

Hashem created the entire cosmos, with its endless wisdom and continuously sustains the cosmos

Hashem loves you

Hashem supervises everything, so much so, that there is no such thing as coincidence

Hashem is the one that we totally rely on for sobriety 'cause we are powerless

So now, who are you really upset at? You just find the challenge daunting. Don't blame you.

Let me just tell you what a quiet erliche yid told me once. I love the guy. He's a true eved Hashem.

He said when I realize that I must or should do something and it appears outside of my reach. I just set myself up the best I can and begin to do it. (sort of Nachshon ben Aminadav)

People are in the business of effort, Hashem is in the business of success.

There is more than one answer. Rabbi Avigdor Miller was known to say that if food was not enjoyable and fill a physical desire then people would forget to eat and many would die.

If women would not be attractive and relations not desirous then people many would simply not procreate.

Having said that, such philosophical discussions tend to lead us off our main focus.

As well, I know with me, my lust is so strong and my -yetzer hara or psychee or tendency or whatever you call it - looks for any seemingly kosher way to discuss women and their physical attributes to somehow keep me thinking about them.

I have struggled in the past by checking out news bits that seem so innocent but in reality were really a lure to get me started on the forbidden. The bits had to do with women's issues that i felt I had to know to be current on the news.

?Balony my friend, I was simply a desperado groping for even a smidgen of the topic so it could hopefully/eventually lead to more dirt.

Honestly now, could this be a reason for you having this discussion? Not so different than the kid who waits for the girl topics in the gemarah or halacha.

Well said!!

now my two cents, who says that woman are prettier then men or then any other creation in the world, and because of that we do what we are not suppose to do, how about, we get excited about women just because our lusty minds drive us that way, and not because of their nice figures, and let say they are pretty and nice, why does it have to get us excited about it, why not look at them like a beautiful stone or a tree, will we get lusty about a nice stone ot tree?, why are we getting excited for a nice women.....

get me the answers.... i dont get it....

maybe, its not them, its hashem, hashem are testing us, and thats why we get excited about them, thats exactly what hashem wants..

LA, congratulations on going to the meeting. Big stuff.

As for HaShem, he didn't tell us to look. If we keep our eyes for our wives, we can channel all our sexual energy (and I'm not talking about Lust right now) and desire and love and appreciation of their femininity toward them, and it can be wonderful and beautiful.

If if we don't, we're misusing it.

Better yet, eat pizza with a pretty woman (or two) and then take her to the local pub. From there, you're on your own.

shivisi hashem, good point. but could i say that hashem didnt place nice trees and stones and other nice scenes in front of our eyes nearly as much as nice women. so the habit of repeatedly seeing a type of nice scene could get us attatched to it.. so dont put it front of our eyes unlike the way He puts other nice scenes in front of our eyes... also i think beautiful women are as pretty as pretty scenes as sunsets trees waterfalls art songs..

eyeglasses and cordnoy, but i dont repeatedly see pizza on the street, stores work, in homes like women. women are always there so its way more likely to become attached to women than pizza

I am married and I used to think I had to much sexual energy - more than my wife could help me with.

Once I came here I learned that it's just my lust that's driving me crazy , and as Dov says in his eloquent way - you learn that your penis won't fall off if you don't masturbate.
