

There must be a way

Posted by starting - 21 Jul 2020 05:34

The y'h gave me a new line of thought today: stopping cold turkey is not for me. I'll forever feel like I'm missing out and I'll get depressed. I should really make my streaks go a bit longer each time.

This is after trying to stop for well over 10 years. How crazy is that?

?I now see even more clearly how he has powers of manipulation that we cannot fathom

Doing it for my good of course. I shouldn't always feel like I'm missing out

The creep

I hereby start my journey to purity

The reason I have not officially done this yet is because I feel that the order of the forum is cleverly designed. I first introduced myself. Then I started a log of trying to break free (this actually in the marrieds section as it's a bit along those lines)

I did not in any way have the strength to attempt a 90. But now I think that the time is ripe. Even if it takes a few tries.

Day 18 (BTW it's my first time at day 18 in my life)

Hatzlacha guys

Slipped...

Having big problems in general and stress level is way beyond anything legal

Trying to to avoid looking where I shouldn't just for today.

ODAAT

That's great that you were able to check in with us in such a state. I have a hard time checking in when I'm down. Hang in there buddy! Tons of kudos and schar for you my friend for every little bit of fight you're putting up!

Would it help to do anything, even a tiny thing, to address any of the following in any way?

HALT which means "Don't become too Hungry, Angry, Lonely, or Tired." or BADS (Boredom, Anxiety, Depression, Stress).

Hatzlacha!

How about HALT! Do not do it, it is BADS!

Thanks guys, it helped me push off for several hours. After that...

I fell really badly last night

To be honest I really felt that sense of freedom. One less worry. Just let my eyes, mind and body do what they naturally want (are used to?).

It felt like I was leaving the stress, worries and pressures of the world for a bit and I liked it.

Afterwards I felt pretty bad but not overwhelmingly so.

Yes, when I went to daven it felt much less connected than it has for a long time.

But I would really appreciate another break.

Lost and hopeless yet still,

Did you like more than being sober?

If you did like being sober, at least somewhat, what about it did you like?

In the 48 hours after my last post I fell 3 times.

The first of those was an escape - useful.

The second not by choice, I already felt that I was sliding down that rabbit hole again but it was also an escape - possibly worthwhile (from my minds clouded point of view at the time)

The third was totally just a 30 second masturbation with no point other than being at the wrong side of the steering wheel - problem

The next thing that came to mind was, those images from the first fall are too fresh.

I have not seen such things in many months and that absolutely makes all the difference.

SEEING FRESH STUFF MAKES ALL THE DIFFERENCE.

I used to think that I had images in my brain abd that's why it's hard.

No

If it's old in only comes your the front of your brain if something triggers that thought.

So after that last fall I realised that I do not want this to to become second nature again.

I still need an escape though.

Real rotten things happened in life.

But this does not work. It too quickly becomes a depressing uncontrollable habit with almost no perks

Stressed and anxious

Once again

1 day clean

Hi Starting

I can't imagine the pain that you are going thru now, may Hashem help you get thru it very quickly.

Please don't underestimate the greatness of ONE CLEAN DAY. After all, 90 days are comprised of 90 "ONE DAYS"

Getting back up and moving on is tough. Great that you were able to do so quickly. May Hashem help you minimize the triggers - you wrote about tough things going on in life in a previous post - and iyh you will keep clean. This getting back on your feet so quickly should be a big zchus for you and for all of us.

OK I'm back

Still challenging, still struggling, still fighting but now I once again feel like it's not worth falling again.

So hard, sometimes feels like it's not worth fighting and sometimes feels like not worth having another fall under my belt.

Fighting it out is a momentary pain while falling is a longer-term pain.

So not much choice...

3 days clean b"h

Please, please listen to me my friend. I know the exact feeling you have right now. The desire was so overwhelming that it caused all other consequences to pale in comparison. After the deed, you feel so horrible, you say to yourself, it is clearly not worth this pain! Enough is enough! Then it slowly starts to fade and the circle starts over.

I did the following, as you can see in my thread. I wrote down my feelings after a fall as clearly as possible, when I had the clarity from feeling horrible after. While experiencing the pain, guilt and self loathing that came along with that small dose of pleasure that seemed so desirable minutes before, I wrote it all down.

MANY times when consumed by desire, I read the feelings i penned after my prior fall and it brought back that clarity.

Please write down the way you feel and post it. It will do wonders if used properly.

Was b"h quite a good week in regards to both the amount of urges and actual progress.

Slipped once yesterday and once today.

Trying to work on emunah so I could better cope with life (shiurim and chovos halevovos) and that helps stress immensely b"h.

Keep us posted starting. You are a great source of inspiration for me. You seem to be going through some tough times. These are the hardest to endure, but the most rewarding too. Care to share the emunah series you're listening to? I think I could use it too.

I listen to the weekly shiur by r' milech Biderman in yiddish while driving. I drive quite a lot for work these days.

I also switch on whatever strikes my fancy on torah anytime through the app.

Dear Grant,

I'm just going to write my feelings down so you can read them daily, and remind yourself of all your painful emotions you feel right now. I hope this will serve as a constant reminder of who you are and how you want to live every second of your life.

Please don't take this lightly, and don't rest assured in a false confidence of your security. You yourself know how many times you were complacent, yet the yetzer harah ambushed you with an unrequested test. He tempted you, exposed you or made you ridiculously "curious" about something. You unwittingly fell into his trap while being certain that you won't be tricked. Be cognizant of his sly and cunning tactics and stay on your toes always expecting the sharp edge of his unsheathed sword against your neck.

Now let me address his methods and explain why they are faulty.

He makes it exciting and interesting but you know it is all a fantasy. The reality is not at all like that. He causes it to feel physically and mentally necessary, but nothing ever happened when you didn't respond. He wants you to focus solely on the desire without allowing room to understand the undesired outcome. Don't be fooled, the cons outweigh the pros by an incredible margin. When you tell yourself that something is harmless - and of course you won't go farther than this - it's your befuddled mind futilely attempting to think straight while under the influence of his harmful intoxication.

Focus on the consequences you suffered in the past. Yes, maybe a few minutes of dizzying pleasure, a moment of satiated curiosity, but followed by excruciating pain, guilt, tears, helplessness. Oh! Where was the expected bliss?

Remember the way you felt, disloyal to loved ones. How painful it was to look into your beloved eishes chayil's face and feel like someone she doesn't think you are or want you to be. The faces of your angelic children haunting your tainted and tortured soul. Oh! Where was the promised pleasure?

Recall every teffilah, each beracha, hours of learning the heilige torah hakdosha, was it satisfying knowing how you acted yesterday? Last week? Last year? How you corroded and corrupted your connection to your creator, filling potentially beautiful moments with jagged scars. Repaying good with evil, selfless giving with selfish indulgences. Oh! Where was the gleeful gratification?

What about your self respect. The way you turn into a gibbering fool at the slightest enticement. A man, now a child. A disciplined person now a mess. Ego smashed and pride all but lost. Oh! Where was the slated delights?

My dear Grant, please absorb all that I'm saying. I'm saying it out of pure unadulterated love. I'm pleading with you because I know your true abilities. I understand the person you really are and truthfully want to be. I know the man you can be. I know the man you will be!

Please take the time to review this heartfelt letter daily, and when faced with struggles.
Constantly pray to your creator and ask for strength.

I know I can be helped, for I can help myself.

Sincerely,

Grant

Have not been here for a bit.

This past week had a few clean days but I fell again this morning.

Thanks to those who have been trying to help, although I did not respond yet it means a lot

Still got very little motivation.

Serious thanks to those who have 'the fight' link in their signature, the reminder of its existence has made me start listening to that again and that helped a lot these last few days.
