

New beginnings

Posted by Choosechayim - 25 Apr 2021 17:23

So, I have posted before about mybpartocular challenges. I am married, but in a sexless marriage, battling the loneliness and sadness that comes with it. I have tried many times for 90 days, and always beat myself up afterwards. So. Here is what I am trying. I am trying 90 days with posting at least 3-4 times a week. I may decide that what I am trying to do is simply that. If I can post consistently for 90 days, then even if I fall, I have committed to being conscious of this work during that time. All chizuk is welcome.

The Gemara says: "Habah letaher misaayen lo - He who comes to be purified, they help him", and Chazal also say: "Biderech she'adom rotzeh leilech molichin osoh - in the way a person wants to go, they lead him". Why does the Gemara speak always in plural form: "they help him", and "they lead him"? The Maharsha explains that every effort a person makes creates an angel. And when the army of angels gets large enough, it has the power to help one overcome all the obstacles and lead him to where he wants to go!

Every time we say "no" to the addiction, a priceless coin is added to our spiritual bank. Even if and when we do end up falling, we do not lose what we had previously gained. When we have enough "spiritual coins" in our account, Hashem helps us to completely break free.

Still here. Thought checking in yesterday would "give me permission " last night, but I persisted. Thanks for all the support

Thank you, yes. I have a therapist (2, if you count the couples therapist my wife stopped showing up for) and quite a support network.

Hey

Hatzlocho in what you're doing. What you said about being conscious of it made a lot of sense to me. It's definitely the first stage and even if it doesn't go anywhere, i still think that the broader picture of not lying to oneself is important.

Fell into a bit of a pornado last night. But survived. Will make sure to keep putting my phone on focus mode

Do you have a filter? Are you able to control the urge when it comes up?

Do you have a filter?

What kinds of things have you tried?

I do not have a filter. I have not found one that is affordable. I would like to get one for my son as well.

Still committed.
