A "moo" was heard from the farmer's cow,

  but really he meant to say "Wow!"

His master started 90 days, of walking in Hashem's ways.

The goats bleat back showing they too are content,

  yes, Master will now receive bracha, Heaven sent,

The farm fowl excitedly chirp, singing sweet,

  Yep, Farmer's on track, and can't be beat.

I don't know whether this is your first day one since the last you posted, or whether there have been several - either way you can take Chizuk in the fact that you've made to this point - a 10 day streak is something to be proud of, and getting back after several falls is certainly something that can be very challenging. Either way, keep posting so we can cheer you on!

"ha what a funny joke" about a half hour after I posted "day 6" I went and fell. after that I fell a few times that night, but b"h pulled myself out of the rut on eruv Shabbos, worked on myself a bit on Shabbos by telling myself that even though I fell now, this time could still be it. one thing that actually helped me a lot, was I visualizes thinking to myself or telling someone in a few years from now, how the time I finally broke free was a pretty low moment for me and I thought I'd be stuck in this rut my whole life. what helped me wasn't the fact that I visualized it, what helped me was that I realized that even now I really have the ????? to stop for good.

whatever thanks for reading my ramblings

(p.s. idk a thing about grammar and I'd love to learn if anyone knows a good book on it please lmk)
