Day 25

Still listening to this conversation. Long but fascinating. He says how addiction or acting out isn't the problem it's the solution meaning why r u acting out. It's because I'm trying to cope with something or escape something. So the reason I act out is the solution I have for the deeper problems. Once you figure out what that is you can figure out the correct way to respond and then you won't need to go to p and m. Can't write it all here but I am starting to really try to stay aware and figure out why I went to this and what I can do to respond in a healthy way.

crazy that I'm still here and going. Now that I've been clean for a while and I'm doing well still being vigilant, but trying to focus on the why and how to fix the deeper reasons.

It's the new normal for you! Enjoy your new reality. You are forging and trudging on, step by step, doing good emotional work and we are all rooting for you! (Gosh, it sounds like I swallowed the uniform of that cheerleader I was craving, somebody please pinch me back into my usual morbid nastiness)

Day 27

Tomorrow is 28 and that's the day reached last time i started the 90 day challenge. The difference is last time I really felt like I was exerting energy in NOT FALLING. but now that's not really my focus and it feels a lot better. Not as stressful and nerve-racking.

Day 30

I can't believe I'm here writing this.

I don't wanna ruin this big milestone but last night I really had a slip and without my filter being good definitely would've fell all the way but bh I didn't.

Thank you everyone for being so supportive. It really helps the fact that I can update daily and have positive feedback and encouragement. This is just the beginning!
