

Nothing to lose

Nothing to lose by starting the 90 day challenge.

the challenges i see before me:

The sturggle to get off my devices.

staying positive and not falling into the trap of skipping steps.

finding ways to interact more with people in the real world.

I have struggled with this for many years I have tried different tools and I see what a differences it makes in my life when I am clean I might as well start.

You're quite the inspiration for someone that stands up and pulls themselves together after a fall.

Inspire us once again!

Twitch is brain rot incarnate...

I was on all day watching other people play a game i used to be addicted to... anyways blocked that with web chaver as well as kick which is the only other thing I can think of that I would go to distract myself...

Anyways made some progress in my life tommrow should be easier accept I got to go to Jerusalem for a meeting but I think it will be okay. Debating if its worth going to the kotel again...

Anyways that's the update for tonight.

I want to get back in the groove again

Really painful!!

I actually hate offering eitzah's especially when I am the way I am, but hating myself a little more today won't make it or break it, so here goes...

Based on your posts, I don't think filters/avoidance/white-knuckling/willpower/90 days will help much for you.

-What are you doing to change your paradigm and perspective regarding this whole challenge? It's pretty hopeless to aim for change if on some level we don't really want to change. (Read some of Vehkam's amazing recent posts that touch on this point)

-Do you have anybody you can be open with to share the nitty gritty details about the specific challenges you are struggling with? When you feel tempted, do you have anyone to share that with? It may not always stop a fall, but it can many times. And it will definitely help with getting up afterwards and not wallowing. Being vulnerable goes a long way, and you can talk about any other stuff you are going through too.

- Last but not least, have you ever explored the 12 steps? Or at least read through some of the wealth of wisdom from Dov's posts to see what it's all about? Not everything may resonate, but it can still be very beneficial.

In any case, no need to shrivel into the shadows, you are some fighter! (although fighting is

Wishing you much Hatzlacha!!

"Debating if it's worth going to the Kotel"?????? WOW.. coming from a guy who flies halfway probably not what is needed at this point around the world to go to the Kotel, I think the answer is, It is always worth going to the Kotel!

Their are a lot of Immodestly dresses women in Jerusalem because it's a tourist area and I was debating putting my eyes through that...

Yes, I avoid it if I could, and many religious people don't go there for this reason.

Just wanted to give an update still clean right now but I am struggling with urges came close to falling a few times the last few days. I made an attempt to do the F2F program more but the last few days i have been busy with stuff BH and kind skipped it probably... but I did see a positive uptick in control and more importantly awarness while using it...

I also wanted to mention I have been kind of cheating on my commitment to stay off YouTube.

I went back to a loophole on my computer to watch some stuff. I am not going back to spotify and I don't have it access to youtube on my phone. I went about a month without it... still going to use YouTube in this form knowing it can be a liability and in the future I plan to block it. I might need to get a toll in order to do so.

Alright thats all for now.
