

Shlomo's Shlep to 90

Posted by teenagehelp - 04 Jan 2010 22:30

I guess i'll give a little background about me. I'm in high school (i'm 17) but i go to a secular, private school and i am more observant than the rest of my family. I've been making the transition over the past 5 or so years to living a more observant lifestyle, and after finding out that my family used to be chasidic, I find a deep connection with Chassidus, mainly through Chabad.
Hey everyone.

However, like many other people on this site, I have slip-ups when it comes to shmiras aynayim. boruch hashem, its not to a point where its unmanageable, but the fact that these slip ups occur is enough cause for worry at least in my own life. I like to think its something normal for a teenager to do, but i still know its something that needs to stop.

i've tried taking measures but i find that the time i'm most inspired to do so is only after the fact or a slip up has occured. i've installed filters and i'm reading through (and trying to live out) the packets from GuardYourEyes, all of which are helpful.

but at the same time, the results aren't 100% and i would love to say that i see the end of the any tips?

Shlomo, Welcome :-)

What I've noticed, with myself, and with others on here... as soon as we decide to fight the Yetzer Hara, he suddenly goes into high level battle mode. Just like you will have withdrawal, the YH will also. HE DOES NOT WANT TO LOSE YOU! So guess what, he's stepping up his game. You will take a step to fight, and he'll take a BIGGER step! Every success of yours will be matched with a greater challenge of the Y"H. There WILL be a certain point where it won't be so bad.... but just like any withdrawal symptoms, they're the WORST in the beginning. What is happening is that you're a "newbie" soldier. The Y"H knows that and is trying to get you to give up. But once you pass the beginning, and become a soldier with experience, the YH will not seem so threatening... He will just be another soldier in the battle of life. But don't let your lack of experience fighting stop you from trying. Its important to just get past these few weeks and then it won't feel like "yea... but I fell this time because life was SO much harder this time than usual...."

We're here with you to help keep things in perspective. My rav once told me... there's nothing wrong w/ going to a movie.... just make sure you buy a seat for GOD. If you wouldn't want God sitting next to you when that pritzus comes on the screen... then maybe you shouldn't be watching the movie. When you're about to fall, make sure we all here at GUE get a seat next to you. Don't forget to tell us that we're expected to occupy that seat. Then maybe we can help you put into perspective for yourself whether we want to be sitting there in the first place... Because realistically, neither of us wants to be there... just sometimes we don't even realize what's happening.... so just make sure to remember... save us a seat!

First of all, wow!

You've been doing some incredible stuff - welcome to the forum!

As far as time management, there are two issues - one is planning things to keep busy, another is having things to do when you want some relaxed, chilled out time. You might want to make sure that you have a few books to read, or games to play, or music to listen to...or you can write poetry, or stories, or play an instrument (do you play any musical instruments?)...

The thing to focus on is continuing to grow - and you're certainly doing that, by seriously and honestly looking at your situation and figuring out how to grow - giving away the apssword to your filter is just one example.

Keep it up!

I just want to once again say thanks to everyone for the amazing help and support. These past couple days have been tough and you all have helped me immensely.

i found a great way to keep myself busy: a new ipod touch. i just downloaded an app with the entire tanach (hebrew and english) and i also use the ipod to study tanya. and it also has my (kosher) videos and music so hopefully it will serve as a tool to further my yiddishkeit both when struggling with my Y"H and also when i study.

once again, i can only say boruch hashem that i found GUE and that everyone has been so Glad to have you here!

And I'm glad that you've been actively looking for ways to move forward, not just avoiding the bad, but moving towards living and goodness!

i was hoping to never have to do this again, but i fell. again. i'm just ashamed and embarrassed. i can go 3 or 4 days, fall but then i feel like i'm back to square one. i've been working on areas that have been troublesome in the past (i.e. laws of the bathroom, internet use as a whole) but he keeps getting me in those areas or with the things that i leave alone and dont improve upon.

if i keep up these battle techniques and add on new ones, i know its just a matter of time before i can make it to 90 days and beyond, but first i gotta make it through these first weeks.

Shlomo,

Stay on the forum on a daily basis. You seem to only come back here when you fall. Why not come back here when you succeed?

i actually do check the forum daily, often multiple times a day. i'm just not a very big poster :-\.
my profile says i've spent 6.5 hrs on the forum. i guess that doesnt reflect the 7 posts i've had.

ooooohh too bad. Really sorry to hear about your last few days.

I think you should get an accountability partner or something. Even those of us much older than you would fall if we didn't have something protecting us, something reminding us of what we really want, and someone we know we'd have to answer to.

First of all, we say Fell, Shmell - because right now, your purpose is not to feel bad and guilty - it's to get up, and keep moving.

I'm gonna agree with Yiddle here - post more. One of the big things with this issue is that it's a big, private secret, like a monster in the closet, and holding that secret close and private eats away at us. Drag it into the light, and it becomes easier. Plus, you have a way to reach out and connect with lots of people who care about you, and want to help you.

It also helps when you have the opportunity to help others and give them chizuk!

It might help if you talk out the issues, figure out when and how the yetzer hora tries to get you...discuss ideas for avoiding it.

Have you read the handbooks yet?
